New PHS Program Designed to Provide Competence in Basics

Each morning, 41 Princeton High School students meet in the former home economics room and begin a half-day program focusing on math, science, English and social studies.

All but one are Black.

"It is not allowed in this day and age to group Black students for instruction. But we're doing it because we think it's the right thing to do educationally," said PHS Principal John Sakala.

The students, largely ninth and tenth graders, are enrolled in the new Mastery Program at the high school, which began in September. It is a program designed to do what its name indicates: help the student master the basic skills necessary to move forward.

The program is an attempt on the part of Princeton Regional Schools to better serve Black students, a significant number of whom are not prepared for college preparatory work when they enter high school. Studies have repeatedly shown that these youngsters are being underserved by the Princeton public school system.

• A 1969 study indicated that Black children started their school careers quite ably, but by the third, fourth and fifth grades had begun to fall behind their classmates.

• In 1979, the Lotz Report revealed that attempts to help Black students through remediation and special education had largely failed. The academic achievement level of 17 Black students studied in the report, who had been receiving supplemental help since the first grade, was low-average to poor in high school. All students, with two possible exceptions, were in the average range of intelligence.

Navarro Resigns As Football Coach

The rumors that had floated about prematurely in the columns of area daily newspapers the last couple of weeks finally became fact Monday night when Frank Navarro, head coach of football at Princeton, announced his resignation.

However, his announcement, which came at the conclusion of the annual football banquet at the Nassau Inn, caught members of Navarro's coaching staff by surprise.

Navarro had met with University President William Bowen earlier in the day, and informed him of the decision, but had not told his assistants.

His decision to take "early retirement" after 31 years of coaching saves President Bowen and Athletic Director Robert Myslik the tough

Township Adopts Housing Ordinance Despite Considerable Citizen Protest

Despite the protests and petitions of residents and landholders, Township Committee has adopted an affordable housing ordinance that will be the basis of its defense in exclusionary zoning lawsuits brought by two developers.

Immediately after the 4-1 vote last Monday night, Committee voted to send the ordinance back to the Planning Board for review of certain basic provisions that were the subject of the most recent and most vocal citizen protest.

As formulated by Committeewoman Gail Firestone who proposed the remand, the three areas for further study are site selection, particularly the Sewer Operating Committee site on River Road and the Terhune Road site; overall density, particularly the disparity between the relatively lower densities on the RM sites in the western section and the RH sites in the north and southeast; and the equitable distribution of sites throughout the Township.

Another standing-room-only crowd of Township residents waited patiently as Committee dealt with a series of amendments before the final vote, which took place at 10:30. Voting "yes" were Mayor Winthrop Pike, Committeeman Richard Schoch, Committeewoman Barbara Cantrill, who cast her vote "with reluctance," and Mrs. Firestone. The lone dissent was from Committeeman William Cherry, who complained bitterly that none of his proposals for putting more of the onus for the housing on the developer were considered seriously by either Township Committee or the Planning Board.

"I think Township Committee and the Planning Board have been absolutely refractory in not trying to lessen the load," Mr. Cherry said. "There is in this government a great move to injure its own town, and I

Boswell Changes Mind on Air Rights Suit; Will Ask Supreme Court to Hear His Case

In a reversal of his previously announced decision, attorney Gerald Boswell will ask the state Supreme Court to hear his case against Princeton Borough's sale of air rights over Palmer Square East to Collins Development.

Mr. Boswell's move came less than three weeks after the settlement of the Witherspoon Jackson Development Corporation (WJDC) lawsuit against Collins and the Borough. A key part of the settlement was Collins' agreement to accelerate the $120,000 air rights payment to help finance affordable housing in the Borough and to provide $42,000 of this money within 30 days.

According to Collins Vice President Gary Green, the company will revert back to the original, slower payment schedule if and when it has to begin legal efforts in the Boswell appeal. However, Mr. Green says he still hopes that dialogue will turn the suit away.

Mr. Boswell's decision to appeal does not jeopardize the settlement between the Borough, Collins, and the WJDC. Everything else — the $70,000 from the sale of the Palmer Square condominiums and Collins' provision of technical assistance to WJDC — remains in place.

Air Rights Suit

Cash Flow Problems. The possible loss of early money from Collins, however, would slow implementation of efforts to provide affordable housing, and would present cash flow problems that had not been anticipated.

Mr. Boswell's action also does not affect the plan now being developed for presentation to Judge Eugene Serpentelli that would fix the Borough's Fair Share housing obligation under Mt. Laurel at no more than 240 units.

At the October 25 press conference announcing the settlement, WJDC attorney Glenn Cochran quoted Mr. Boswell as affirming to him that he would not pursue his suit against the air rights sale in order to help the Borough and the Witherspoon-Jackson community.

Two days earlier, the Appellate Division of state Superior Court had ruled against Mr. Boswell and had upheld Princeton Borough's right to sell the air rights. The judges' unanimous decision precluded any automatic right of appeal to the state Supreme Court. However, Mr. Boswell had the right to request an appeal. And that is exactly what he has now done.

Collins Corporation Attorney Dennis Casale says he does not believe the Supreme Court will agree to hear Mr. Boswell's appeal. "We are confident it will not be granted."

However, he does see the possibility that the matter might not be settled until the beginning of March.

In April of this year, several months after Superior Court Judge Paul G. Levy upheld the granting of air rights by the Borough, and just prior to his filing briefs to continue the case in Appellate Court, Mr. Boswell was quoted as saying, "Time is more costly to Collins than to any other party."

Why? Why, after the Appellate Court unanimously agreed with Judge Levy that Borough Council had the same authority to sell the air space over a street as it does any municipal property, is Mr. Boswell continuing to appeal?

First of all, he says, there was some confusion in communication as to what the settlement between the Borough, Collins, and WJDC really was.

"I thought the air rights money would be paid in a single large sum, not extended over a five-year period," said the Wilton Street resident and attorney with the Public Advocate's office.

After he discovered this, he said he began to talk to a number of people, including residents of different parts of the Borough and other attorneys. Most of those he talked with, he said, objected to the amount of money paid by Collins for the air rights.

He also said he would not have acted if he had felt the impact of his appeal would have been fatal to WJDC or to the Housing Trust Fund. "It will not be a drawback that cannot be overcome."

Mr. Boswell believes that the Supreme Court, which he says is the leading court in property cases, might be interested in the case. "This is the first time any court has been confronted by the public's right to air space vs. a municipality's right to sell that air space to a private firm."

Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund, surprised by Mr. Boswell's decision to attempt an appeal, said that "everyone is staying in.

"Collins has left an open door. We all hope that Mr. Boswell will find it in his heart to go through that open door so we can restore a substantial amount of money toward a workable solution to affordable housing in Princeton Borough.

DEAD DEER IS YOURS

For the Venison. Motorists who hit and kill a deer accidentally or a New Jersey resident who comes across a freshly killed deer on any New Jersey public highway may now legally possess that deer for their personal use, providing they obtain a permit.

Under a recently enacted state law, people living in New Jersey may now salvage venison from road-killed deer under regulations similar to those existing in both New York and Pennsylvania. However, they must obtain a free permit from the police entitling them to possess the deer, and the permit must remain with the deer until the deer is disposed of.

The new law is intended to make use of accidentally killed deer and to reduce the number of dead deer which must be disposed of by other means. Last year in New Jersey there were more than 3,000 reported cases of accidentally killed deer.

NEIGHBORS INVITED

To Hear Peterson Plans. S.T. Peterson & Co. has invited its Hopewell Valley neighbors to an open forum on Thursday, November 29, at 8 p.m. at the Hopewell Valley Golf Club.

The company, a commercial real estate developer and construction firm, seeks to construct two buildings for a total 240,000 square feet as a research-office complex at the southeast corner of Elm Ridge and Carter Roads. S.T. Peterson purchased the 85-acre tract from Gen. Otto Nelson in 1974 and refers to it as the Nelson Estate.

Plans for the development have been before the Hopewell zoning and planning boards and in litigation since 1980. The property is in a predominantly residential area and lies partly in Lawrence Township and partly in Hopewell Township. Neighbors in both townships have vigorously opposed the granting of the requisite variance for office-researeh use.

In full-page ads calling attention to the open forum, S.T. Peterson invites residents "without lawyers or intermediaries" to air their concerns and offer suggestions before the company once again presents its plans to the Hopewell Township Zoning Board. "We feel that suceessful development is dependent upon open communication and mutual understanding with our neighbors," the ad states.

Residents are also invited to write or eall Mark Berkowsky, S.T. Peterson vice president, design, a registered architect who heads the design department of the firm, at P.O. Box 705, Princeton 08542, 924-4420.

STUDY TO BE AIRED

On Princeton Airport. There will be an open meeting Thursday, November 29, at 8 at the Montgomery Township Hall on Route 206 to let interested residents know the results to date of a feasibility study on Princeton Airport.

The study of whether or not an airport in that location is potentially economically viable and whether it should remain located as is, or somewhere else in Mercer County, has been conducted by Trans Plan, an airport planning and consulting firm in New York City. The study was commissioned by Montgomery Township whieh will receive 90 percent reimbursement of the $60,000 cost from the Federal Aviation and Aeronautics board.

Montgomery Township also created an ad hoc Citizens Advisory Board under the chairmanship of Richard LeTard of Meadow Run Road and a technical committee to work with and oversee the airport planning consultants. Aecording to Mr. LeTard, the interim report to be aired on November 29 is expected to indieate that it is feasible to continue Princeton Airport as a commuter faeility and that no other location, such as Forrestal, would serve as well.

There will be visual presentations made at the meeting, based on the report. The next step, Mr. LeTard says, is to taekle the economics of who should own and operate the airport.

ONE MORE STEP

Toward Senior Center. At a meeting of Borough Council this past Tuesday evening (November 20), Council was expected to allocate $17,000 from the Capital Improvement Fund to complete work on the Senior Citizens Center.

This additional money would allow the Borough to accept a bid from Rampart Construction Co. in Washington Crossing, Pa., to renovate

You Can Help the Fire Department

Not often are citizens of a community given the opportunity to make a donation to the fire department and help themselves simultaneously. The Princeton Fire Department is offering just such an opportunity between now and the end of December.

In order to obtain a videotape series of updated firefighting techniques, the Fire Department must sell a minimum of 225 fire extinguishers. The Kidde "Fire Away" extinguishers are high quality fire protection for the home, apartment, auto, boat or recreational vehicle. Each has a value of $25 and may be purchased from the Fire Department for $15 — a bargain considering the potential damages it can prevent.

The videotape series will benefit Engine Company No. 1, Hook and Ladder and Engine Company No. 3 which, until now, have relied on outdated firefighting technique films part of the former gym behind Borough Hall into a senior center.

Those interested in purchasing a fire extinguisher or obtaining further information may call 924-3338 and leave a message.

The contract for the center had gone out to bid three times. Each time the bids came back too high. Rampart, which came in at $47,000, was the lowest of six bidders.

The additional $17,000 is necessary because the Borough currently has only $34,000 in monies from the Older Americans Act to use for the center.

To date, the former gym has had an infusion of $99,000 for renovation. This includes $78,000 from the federal government and $21,000 from the Princeton Art Association, which moved into the building in the late spring. The PAA, which will share the building with the senior center, has also agreed to pay all utilities.

In addition, the Borough is saving $28,000 on the cost of painting the interior and exterior of the building. The reason: residents of the Mercer County Correction Center will do the job. The crew from the correction center also painted several firehouses in Princeton earlier this year.

Need for Blood Does Not Take a Holiday

Princeton resident are urged to help maintain an adequate supply of blood for patients this holiday season by donating blood at Princeton Medical Center.

According to Sidney Goldfarb, M.D., blood chairman, Princeton Area Chapter, American Red Cross, December and January are two of the most difficult months in which to recruit blood donors. The need for blood remains the same, he says, yet the number of donors often decreases. He cites the fact that three major holidays — Hanukkah, Christmas and New Year's Day — fall within a three-week period as a primary reason for the decrease.

Yet, during the hustle and hustle of the holiday season, Princeton area residents must not forget that hospital patients are depending on them to supply the blood needed. The Red Cross suggests that a few minutes spent in donating blood can help a person truly appreciate the spirit of giving this holiday season.

Call the Princeton Area Red Cross at 924-2404 for an appointment to give blood.

GROWTH IS TOPIC

Of Planners' Meeting. Planning board members from Princeton Borough and Township are invited to meet with those from Mercer County's other municipalities, for the first time on a county-wide basis, on Saturday, December 8, at the Lawrenceville School to consider "Growth in Mercer County: Issues and Opportunities," under the sponsorship of the Mercer County League of Women Voters.

With a goal of improving the planning process at local, county and state levels, the conference will focus on issues of growth as they relate to traffic and transportation, housing and land use. Invited to join the discussion with the planning board members are mayors and elected officials of the county's municipalities, zoning board and environmental commission members, and the Mercer County Executive and freeholders.

Panelists participating in the event are Stefan Gable, director, Division of Economic Development, Mercer County, Carl Hintz, planning consultant, Arthur Holland, Mayor of Trenton, Harry Sayen, columnist and president, Middlesex Somerset Mercer Regional Study Council, and Eugene Schneider, manager, Division of Long-Range Planning, N.J. Office of Management and Budget. Ingrid Reed, chair of the Mercer County Planning Board, will summarize the proceedings. Robin Mastricola, Hopewell Valley League, will serve as moderator.

In preparation for the discussion, League members in Ewing, Hamilton, Hopewell, Lawrence, Pennington, Princeton and Trenton interviewed mayors and planning board officials to determine their reactions to the process of change in the county. Topics covered include the Mt. Laurel decision, Route 1 traffic and the role of the municipality vs. the state and the county.

Betsey Harding of the Lawrenceville League will report on the interviews at the conference. She notes that a common concern in all the municipalities was the pace and direction of growth. One official pointed to "the lack of a real county master plan" as part of the problem. Another reflected, "Growth seems to take place where a developer is willing to add infrastructure." And a third summed up Mercer's current situation by saying, "We're all in a line. Lawrence's problems now used to be Ewing's and will soon be West Windsor's, then Hopewell's."

The December 8 conference, which is open to the public, will take place from 9 a.m. to 12 noon in the Heely Room of Memorial Hall on the Lawrenceville School campus. Directions will be posted inside the main gate on Route 206.

Kittens Needed

Landau's Clothing Store will hold its fifth annual kitten window during the holiday season.

For several weeks during the holidays, Landau's left-hand window becomes an adoption agency/pet store for kittens. Pedestrians scurrying along Nassau Street in search of Christmas gifts are inevitably drawn to the sight of kittens of every stripe and color alternately cavorting and snoozing underneath a green Christmas tree.

The kittens are donated by area families anxious to find good homes for the litter the family cat suddenly produced. They are purchased by still other families full of the spirit of Christmas giving. Proceeds are donated to the Family Food Fund sponsored by radio stations WHWH and WPSAT, which in turn benefits needy families throughout Mercer County.

Landau's invites all who want to find homes for their kittens to call the kitten hot-line, 924-8461.

SIX VACANCIES

On Planning Board. There are six vacancies either already created or pending on the Princeton Regional Planning Board. These vacancies are evenly split between the Borough representation and that of the Township.

On the Borough side, Michael Floyd has already departed because he has moved out of the Borough to Plainsboro. His term was due to be up at the end of December. William Walker III, who took Sydney Taggart's place in August, 1983, has also submitted his resignation.

To fill these two spots, Borough Mayor Barbara Sigmund will announce her selection of Susan Hillier and James Sayen to Borough Council members this week. Ms. Hillier, a former Township resident who has moved to the Borough, has experienced the Planning Board review process as the developer of the Baldwin Lane subdivision off Ridgeview Road.

Mr. Sayen, also a former Township resident currently living in the Borough, has long been involved in open space acquisition for both municipalities and the Environmental Commission. He served by appointment of the governor as a Commissioner on the Delaware and Raritan Canal Commission until recently.

The third departing member of the Planning Board from the Borough is Peter Bearse, who served as the Borough Council appointee but who relinquished an opportunity to run for re-election in order to run for Congress this fall. Mayor Sigmund says she will announce the Borough Council appointee at the reorganization meeting on January 1.

For the Township, John VanPlantinga has vacated his seat on the Planning Board, citing personal and business reasons. In addition, Richard Schoch's one-year term as Committee representative is up on December 31, at the same time that his three-year term on Committee expires. Mr. Schoch did not seek re-election for a second term.

PETER GRACE HONORED: J. Peter Grace, chairman, W.R. Grace & Co., (center) delivered the first Bernard Kilgore Memorial Lecture last Friday at the University's Woodrow Wilson School. On hand to congratulate him for his leadership as head of the President's Private Sector Survey on Cost Control in the federal government were: (left to right) Al Felzenberg, N.J. assistant secretary of state, representing Gov. Kean; James Kilgore, president, the Princeton Packet; Richard Gillespie, president, Gillespie Advertising, which provided a grant for the lecture; and County Executive Bill Mathesius.

His place as Committee representative is likely to be taken by Thomas Poole, a current Planning Board member elected to Township Committee on November 6. In addition to these two vacancies, Chairman Hans Sander's most recent five-year term is up on December 31. First elected to the Township Planning Board in 1965, Mr. Sander has served for nearly 20 years, the last 14 on the Regional Planning Board created in 1970.

He says he has not decided yet whether or not to continue. As the joint municipal board with the approval authority for residential and commercial development in both municipalities and the agency responsible for formulating the Master Plan under state land use law, the Planning Board plays a pivotal role in shaping the growth of the community.

SETTLEMENT REACHED

In Accident Suit. An out-of-court settlement reached last month will reportedly pay 21-year-old Andrew Goodyear of The Great Road an estimated $1.75 million.

Goodyear was a student at Princeton High School and an outstanding tennis player when he was injured in a car accident September 2, 1981, which damaged his spinal cord and left him a quadraplegic.

The settlement was reached after a two-week hearing before Superior Court Judge Daniel O'Donnell, according to Mr. Goodyear's attorney Michael Furey of Morristown. Mr. Furey declined to reveal the exact amount of the settlement.

Mr. Goodyear had sued Mercer County, Hopewell Township and two bars which he and Anthony Dell of Ewing, then 19 and the driver of the car, had been visiting the night of the accident. The 1980 sedan was owned by Lynn Woolfe, then 42, of Princeton, a passenger in the car.

The accident occurred at the intersection of Elm Ridge and Carter Roads when the car smashed into a shoulder along the road. Mr. Dell and Ms. Woolfe sustained only minimal injuries. Mr. Goodyear was left with no feeling from the chest down and he can move only his shoulder muscles and biceps.

Hopewell Township was later removed from the suit. Mercer County was involved, according to Mr. Goodyear's lawyer, because the County had failed to maintain its roads properly. "Stop" and "stop-ahead" signs had allegedly not been maintained and a double arrow sign before the intersection was said to be missing.

The settlement monies will come from the County's insurance carriers — Fireman's Fund and Continental. The County's share is $300,000, the deductible it was carrying at the time of the accident.

Mercer County Executive William Mathesius commented that he believed the County's negligence in the suit was so minimal that, had it been tried in court, the county might not have been forced to pay the $300,000. He urged in a letter to the County Freeholders that they support his attempts to have a bill passed that would change the way counties are subject to damage suits under the existing law.

The $300,000 will come from a special reserve fund which the County has been paying into since it became self-insured in the late 1970s.

ALARM IS SOUNDED

For Roof Fire. All Princeton volunteer fire companies responded to a general alarm sounded at 1:28 Tuesday afternoon for a roof fire at 113 Linden Lane.

According to police, the fire was started while roofers were working on the roof. Damage was described as considerable. Police said there was a hole in the roof and in the side of the house and smoke damage.

A few hours earlier just before noon, firemen rsponded to a call reporting smoke at 142 Mercer Street but police report there was no fire.

Township police report a fire early Monday morning (5:39) in an apartment owned by Princeton University at 42 Lake Lane. The occupant, Nancy Kanach, told police that she was aroused by the smell of smoke and discovered the foot of her bed in flames.

Police said that an electric blanket had ignited the bed and mattress. Ten firemen responded and pulled the burning bedding from the apartment. Police said the fire was confined to the mattress.

WALLET IS STOLEN

From Madison Hall. Someone entered an office in Madison Hall on the Princeton University campus without force during the weekend and took a wallet that had been left on a chair. The victim, a university employee, lost $250.

An intruder entered Larry's Sunoco service station, 273 Nassau Street, during the night last week and once inside entered the manager's office, where he used a screwdriver to pry open a desk. Taken were 21 inspection stickers and $156 in cash. Police said the station was entered between 11 p.m. and 6 a.m. through a door without force.

A home on Philip Drive in the Township was entered Thursday through an unlocked garage door that led to the house. From one upstairs bedroom the thief took $50 and two pairs of sunglasses; from another bedroom, $25. Police listed the entry between 11:30 in the morning and 3 in the afternoon.

When a student was about to enter her room in Seabrook Hall on the Westminster Choir College campus Monday morning, she noticed a person was inside. When she also observed that he had removed her red leather wallet from her desk, she followed him to the first-floor kitchen area. The suspect was standing over a counter, going through her wallet.

The victim confronted the suspect and told him "That's my wallet" but he replied, police said, that he was an employee of the college and she was mistaken. When the victim went to seek further assistance, the suspect fled. Police later searched the area without success.

The suspect is a black male in his early 20s, thin, and has a moustache. He was wearing a blue-hooded sweat shirt. The value of the missing wallet, which contained a check book and credit cards but no cash, is $55.

FOR WANT OF A NAIL...

Dim Lights Lead To Arrest. A pair of dim tail lights led to the arrest last week of a Princeton Medical Center employee.

Ptl. Ralph Terracciano stopped the car on Stockton Street to warn the driver about the lights, and while talking to the driver he noticed a carton in the back of the car with hospital items in it. The officer also observed that the car had a Princeton Medical Sticker on the window.

Hospital security was called to the scene and verified that the contents of the carton — paper towels, toilet tissue and Kleenex — were the same as those used by the hospital. They also confirmed that the driver, Willie Richardson, 36, of Trenton, was an employee.

When a further check revealed that the carton had been stolen from the housekeeping department at the hospital, Richardson was arrested and charged with theft. He is scheduled to appear in Borough court December 5.

Shoplifter. Ezekiel J. Thomas Jr., 36, of Trenton, has been charged with shoplifting $16.67 worth of meat from the Super Fresh market in the Princeton Shopping Center.

Police were called Sunday and notified that store employees were in pursuit of shoplifters running from the store. When Ptl. David A. Funk arrived, they pointed in the direction the suspects had fled and the officer observed a person, later identified as Thomas, crouched and peeking through a fence.

Thomas was later released after the store manager John W. Campbell signed a complaint against him. A second person apprehended was not charged.

mischief for spray painting grafitti on a cinder block wall of a building behind Community Liquors, 23 Witherspoon Street.

Police report the two had sprayed the words "Groovy Times" in red and black paint.

Sgt. William Clark and Ptl. Ralph Terracciano had entered the lot while on patrol at 3:42 last Wednesday morning. They noticed a knapsack and a can of black spray paint next to the wall. A check revealed five more cans of various colored spray paint inside the knapsack and a stencil for the two words.

The two officers continued on through the lot. Ptl. Terracciano then staked out the knapsack. Ten minutes later, the two students picked up the knapsack and headed up the Tulane alley toward the university campus. Both were stopped at the entrance to the campus and charged. Each is scheduled to appear in Borough court December 5.

THEFT BY DECEPTION

Two Juveniles Charged. Two juveniles at Davidson's Market, 173 Nassau Street, had a minor scam interrupted by a sharp-eyed manager.

Police said that the manager noticed that a 17-year-old cashier was ringing up items for less than the listed value for a customer, who turned out to be a 16-year-old youth. She had rung up a $4.52 sale for items that actually cost $14.40.

The two, both Princeton residents, were charged by Ptl. Charles Davall with theft by deception and later released. Chief Michael Carnevale said that each would be processed by the Borough Juvenile Officer.

NO BUD FOR YOU

Says Liquor Store Clerk. A customer attempting to buy a quarter keg of Budweiser beer at Community Liquors, 23 Witherspoon Street, Friday night ended up with a charge instead of a keg.

Police report that an alert clerk noticed that the offered driver's license had been altered. A check in a Princeton University yearbook in the store revealed that the customer was born in 1965 and

The clerk notified police and later signed a complaint against Michael Marinko, 19, of Chicago for misrepresenting his age to induce sale of alcoholic beverage.

"The clerk should be commended," said Chief Michael Carnevale. "This kind of scrutiny hopefully will control some of the attempted and actual purchases by minors."

HOLIDAY GALA SET

At Squibb Gallery. A Renaissance Holiday Gala sponsored by the Squibb Corporation to benefit The Princeton Junior School (PJS) will take place Friday, December 14, at the Squibb Gallery.

The reception, planned from 6 to 8:30 p.m., will feature Renaissance entertainment.

The Princeton Junior School, located at 407 Nassau Street, is an outgrowth of Miss Mason's School, which ceased operation in 1982.

According to Headmistress Juliana Cuyler McIntyre, a former teacher at Miss Mason's, PJS is forging its own character while continuing to build on the strengths of Miss Mason's philosophy and practice.

PJS trustees are Helen M. Craven, president; Olivia P. Fill, James B. McIntyre, James P. Schureman II, and T. Leslie Shear Jr.

THEFT REPORT

Cold Weather: Missing Coats. Is the advent of colder weather responsible for the theft of three coats last week?

A student's black leather jacket with a European cut valued at $500 was taken last week during a 15-minute period from a coat room in the Cottage Club on Prospect Avenue, and another student's blue parka valued at $80 to $100 was taken Thursday from a Cloister Inn coat room.

A Princeton resident told police Saturday that his brown leather, bomber-type jacket had been stolen from an overhead rack on a Suburban bus between 6 and 7:30 p.m. It is valued at $215.

Two student knapsacks were also stolen. One, valued at $100 and containing a $30 calculator and textbooks, was taken last week from the Cottage Club, and another, also unattended, was stolen Thursday from a hall entrance at the Campus Club. It contained a 35 mm camera, Walkman radio and books. Total loss: $142.50

In still another theft on Prospect Avenue, this one at Stevenson Hall, a student lost $15 and credit cards when her wallet was removed from her backpack which she had left from 6 to 7:15 p.m. in a first-floor coat room.

A more direct approach was employed by a thief last week who tossed a cinder block through a display window at Farrington's Music, 12 Spring Street, allowing him to reach in and remove a $229 electric guitar.

An attempt Saturday morning to steal a bicycle chained to an interior handrail in a Pine Street home failed when the owner on the second floor heard noises in the hallway. He went down to investigate, causing the would-be thief to flee. Police commented that the same owner has had two other bicycles stolen from the same area during the past two years.

Four wire-spoke hubcabs valued at $340 were removed from the 1984 Ford of a Cranbury resident, while it was parked early Thursday evening in the St. Paul's Church lot off Moore Street.

Less fortunate was a Princeton University student who reported the theft last week of his 1978 VW Rabbit parked in the lot behind the Cap and Gown Club, 61 Prospect Avenue. Police report the car had been locked.

$16,000 Truck Missing. Township police report that a 1980 Ford truck valued at $16,000 is missing from in front of the McMillan Building on the university campus where it had been parked. The truck had not been locked and Capt. Jack Petrone said the incident is still under investigation.

A resident of Holly House in Princeton Community Village, Margaret Schmidt, told police that her 1977 Ford Maverick valued at $2,000 had been stolen from a Holly House lot during a three-day period last week. The keys had been left inside the glove compartment, police said.

Equipment worth $738, including a color television set, digital meter and tire and rim were stolen from a Home Link, Inc. truck parked a lot at 601 Ewing Street. The theft was discovered Friday morning.

A three by four-foot red flag with a white diagonal stripe, valued at $50, was stolen last week from a stand in front Princeton Aqua Sports, 306 Alexander Street.

An employee of Opinion Research Corporation, Steve Cohn of Trenton, lost $80 last week when his wallet was removed from his coat hanging in the ORC cafeteria. The wallet is valued at $20.

WINDOWS BROKEN

In Abandoned Car. The windows of a disabled 1971 car which police said had been abandoned for at least ten days on Quaker Road near Squatters' Grove had its windows broken last week with rocks.

Township police ticketed the owner, Shirley M. Stone, of Mount Holly for abandonment and had the car towed away. Damage was estimated at $300.

In two other acts of criminal mischief, someone let the air out of all four tires of a 1979 station wagon while it was parked during a 15-minute period Friday morning in the Princeton Community Village, and a BB pellet was shot through a rear screen and window of a Deer Path home last week, causing $25 in damage.

DRIVER LOSES LICENSE

For DWI. Glenn F. Parker, 18½ Chestnut Street, lost his license for six months and was fined a total of $365 Monday in Borough traffic court for driving while intoxicated. John S. Neceda, 118 Spruce Street, was fined $214 by Judge Russell M. Annich Jr. for having an open container of alcohol in his car.

Fined $60 each for speeding were Edmund A. Wilson Jr., 21 Bainbridge Street; Ronald J. Comer, 13 Pin Oak Drive, Lawrenceville, and Anita C. Trullinger, 10 Meadow Lane, Penniogtoo. Also paying $60 fines were David M. Wiener, 802 Fox Run Drive, Plainsboro, illegal backing or turning; Gabrielle Milnor, 16 Ober Road, stop sign; and William A. Morrison, 59 Thoreau Drive, Plainsboro and Arthur J. Peuichero, RD 1, Princeton, both red light.

Others: Judith S. Morgan, Cranbury, $75, failure to stop for a stopped school bus; Kayoko Kawase, 976 Alexander Road, $20, unregistered vehicle; Nicholas S. Murphy, 123 Holder Hall, Princeton University, $30, operating a motorcycle without a helmet; Fleurette K. Faus, 30 Armour Road, $25, unlicensed driver; and Alfred G. Conte III, 1 Jacob Drive, Princeton Junction, $20, failure to make repairs.

Township Court. In Township court last week, three were fined for careless driving.

Reginald S. Roberton, 497 Herrontown Road, and Michael E. Krystaponis, 31 Chestnut Street, each paid $65, while Wafa F. Abdelati, 1002

FOODTOWN OF ROCKY HILL HAS THE FRESHEST SEAFOOD CATCH OF THE DAY — DAY BOAT FISH!
The boats catching the fish will leave the harbor at 3 a.m. and arrive back in port by 1 p.m. (This is called day boat fish). The fish are then taken off the boats in ice-packed containers. The containers are then placed on the conveyor belt and sent directly to the cutting room that has a temperature no higher than 30 degrees. As soon as the fish is filleted, it is candled (run over a light to check for parasites) and sent through a spraying tunnel. The spray is 100% distilled water. From there it is placed in the tray and moves down the line through a tunnel for the ultrasonic sterilization of bacteria. Immediately the pack is sealed and placed in a chilled box. After the boxing is completed the product goes into the cooler awaiting pack-up (the same day) for transport to the stores. All the above process is completed within a two-hour period. At no time will any product be packed that isn't caught within the 10-hour period.

Lifemobile Program.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I am writing this letter on behalf of the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad.

Recent articles in area newspapers have reported that Helene Fuld Hospital (the hospital responsible for the County Lifemobile system) will be replacing the present system of 10 or 11 Lifemobiles (Mobile Intensive Care Units) with three units operated from strategic points around the County. This is true but needs to be placed in the perspective of the history of the program.

The Mercer County Lifemobile program started around 1975 as a predominantly volunteer operation with a few vehicles and paramedics and expanded as more people were trained, to a total of 11 units. The vehicles were often staffed with only one paramedic who was assisted by Emergency Medical Technicians and others trained in basic skills.

In the last few years for a variety of reasons including burnout and the migration of volunteers to out-of-county paid positions, the number of individuals trained as paramedics, maintaining their certification, and continuing to ride as volunteers with Mercer county Lifemobiles has decreased.

At the same time, the State Department of Health has notified the Mercer County Lifemobile program that they are not in compliance with a state regulation that requires two paramedics to ride on each call. To meet this requirement and to guarantee 24-hour paramedic coverage, Helene Fuld Hospital has proposed three units (the maximum reimbursable under state population guidelines) staffed full-time by two paid professionals each.

The loss of the squad-based Lifemobiles will not mean the loss of ambulance coverage. Princeton First Aid Squad will continue to provide emergency medical services to Princeton Borough and Township with our volunteers and paid day crew. Princeton First Aid Squad will work actively with the paid Lifemobiles when needed. These changes will not come about until after the first of the year. We feel they will provide a good foundation for this much needed program.

Rather than expend more energy trying to preserve the present understaffed system (Princeton has only two volunteer paramedics), we recommend that continued efforts be directed to obtaining state authorization for a fourth and fifth paid or mixed paid/volunteer unit that would improve response times to the remote parts of the greater Mercer area and also decrease the likelihood of all units being tied up on calls at the time an additional call is received.

If we can answer any question you have, call our business number, 924-3338. Please leave your name and number.

J. EDWIN OBERT, JR.
Captain

Thanks from Hook & Ladder.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

To you volunteers who helped us volunteers on November 7 at the fire involving the H&L firehouse — we thank you. While we volunteers have a commitment to be there at that ungodly morning hour, you volunteers had no such commitment.

The neighbor across the street who opened his door to provide water for drinking and making coffee when our water was turned off, the ladies who made and served the coffee and doughnuts, the people who helped us remove our antiques, mementos, trophies, etc., and others who contributed their time and efforts in many ways — we thank you. To the always available First Aid and Rescue Squad and our fellow firemen who responded to the mutual aid call — we thank you.

If we have missed anyone who helped us — we thank you, too.

We were able to hold our regular monthly meeting that very same night at H&L, thanks to all of you.

temperature was more typical of summer than late October, we enjoyed, through the leafless trees, a delightful display of fireworks. Apparently we were not alone, for the "oohs" and "aahs" and cheers of neighborhood children were heard in the darkness as they too enjoyed the colorful show.

Our thanks go to the student body who shared their pre-Harvard pep rally with the rest of the community in such a creative way.

Princeton, the community, has an ambiance that goes beyond the academe or the ivy covered walls — a real and extremely important ingredient is the vitality, verve and freshness brought by the youth and vigor of the student body. I hope that the day I no longer appreciate this latter ingredient and feel that it is "polluting" our community, I will have the sense to call the moving company rather than call down the student body.

Thank you again for your positive contributions to the community.

Housing Ordinance Explained.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

As you know, a housing ordinance has been introduced in Township Committee, based on 12 years of work by the Planning Board and concerned citizens. The Fair Share numbers in the ordinance are the result of calculations relating to the Mount Laurel II case. In the 1980 Master Plan, we had projected about 300 Affordable units for the Township (200-400). Unfortunately, some local citizens seem more concerned about opposing Mount Laurel as a doctrine of the New Jersey Supreme Court than they are at looking to see what benefits or detriments this particular ordinance brings to the Township.

The concepts in the present ordinance are an attempt to respond to Princeton's vision of itself in the future, as voiced by the public at the Public Hearings in 1978 and 1979, before the adoption of the Master Plan, and an attempt to respond to present problems. It may be useful to explain the recommendations and concepts of the ordinance briefly.

Five sites (R-M), environmentally suitable for cluster development and with good road frontage, are recommended to be zoned at 3.25 dwelling units per acre, with 22% of the units provided by the developer at no cost to the Township Housing fund. Fifty percent of the site is required to be Open Space, and the Planning Board has extensive input on the location of units clustered on the site to preserve existing neighborhoods and environmental assets.

Smaller sites (R-H) zoned at 12 dwelling units per acre with 25% Open Space will contain 50% market units. These market units are projected to sell from $60,000 to $80,000, a price range of housing which is not being built presently in Princeton. Sales of houses in Princeton Borough and Township together in the last 12 months between a willing buyer and seller at a price under $100,000 amounted to a total of 17.

Only five houses were in the $60,000 to $80,000 price range, four of them in the area between the hospital and Route 206. Market units can be reserved for municipal and school employees and middle-income local citizens. In addition, 25% of the units will be lower-income units, and 25% moderate (Affordable Units).

If developers wish to locate Affordable Units off-site, their required housing contribution goes from 22% to 30%. The developer must buy off-site land and build the units to protect the Township from rising costs. The R-M sites, if housing is built off-site, will produce 508 units, or 379 units if built on-site. The difference between this number of R-M units and our Fair Share number will have to be produced by other means (not by tax increases, according to this ordinance).

On each R-H site, the Township Fund will be the developer of the market units, and the profits will go to the Fund. The Fund will then be able to provide long-term maintenance of Affordable Units (missing from all other municipal Mount Laurel programs), provide extra amenities for the R-H sites (lighting, landscaping, curbs and sidewalks are waived by the Courts for Mount Laurel developers) and for attractive development of the 25% Open Space on each site as a neighborhood park or playground (not provided under Mount Laurel). It is projected that there will be enough money in the Fund to build the Affordable Units not provided by the R-M sites by the development fee (thus taxes will not have to go up to build units).

Above all, control of the program is by Township Committee, not by developers who are more concerned with profits than what kind of long-term problems they have left behind in Princeton when they move on to despoil greener fields.

To summarize the benefits provided to the Township by the ordinance:

1) No rise in taxes to build or maintain units.

2) Amenities, suitable to the Princeton ambiance, can be provided.

3) 27 acres of neighborhood parks are provided through R-H sites, and 265 acres of Open Space through R-M sites.

4) Control of the arrangement of units on the site by the Township, as well as phasing and size of Affordable Units.

5) Profligate use of land as seen in other municipalities will not be required to produce our Fair Share.

Of course, we hope that the Court will count all our existing low-income units, not require a phasing-in system as at present. If our fair share number is lower by approximately 100 units, then one R-H and one R-M site will not be needed, or the density can be lowered on the R-H site.

I hope this letter tells you why we made some of the choices that we did. Ordinance-revision suggestions need to be tested to see what overall benefits will result to the whole community.

I think that the present ordinance should be revised. I think that the Sewer Operating site should be removed and that the density should be lowered on the R-H sites. I think we should continue to fight to get an equitable Fair Share number. Other suggestions should continue to be considered.

MARGEN PENICK
Elm Lane

Editor's Note: Mrs. Penick is vice-chairman of the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

Cars in Pockets.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Your recent article about meter feeding fails to dramatize the fact that, if meter feeding violations were enforced to the letter of the law, employers would not be able to keep employees, and momentarily the main Princeton business district would be a ghost town. People who work in the main Princeton business district come from many different places. Not all these have bus service to Princeton.

If every municipally owned parking lot became a Park 'n' Shop Lot, and about 30 percent of the spaces were allocated for monthly parkers, I think that would be a better solution than constantly cracking down on meter feeders. Where can people put their cars, in their pockets?

ETHAN C. FINLEY
Princeton Community Village

Delay in Legal Action Asked.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Following is the text of a letter we have sent to Judge Eugene D. Serpentelli.

We are writing to you as individual concerned citizens of Princeton Township who are strong supporters of low and moderate income housing in our community. Together with other citizens of the community, we were able to influence the local authorities to approve the construction of 339 units of federally subsidized housing in the past 10 years.

At present, the Township is involved with the issue of the Mount Laurel II decision, and is attempting to create an ordinance to comply with that decision. The proposed ordinance has, in the past few weeks, been overwhelmingly opposed by hundreds of our citizens, through petitions and participation in public meetings. They challenge not only specific provisions of the revised ordinance, but also central premises upon which the new ordinance would be based.

The proposed ordinance further perpetuates an existing, internal exclusionary zoning arrangement where an already densely populated area (predominantly in the northeast section of Princeton Township) is to be overburdened and congested with additional high-density housing development of 12 units per acre as well as existing and under-construction office-research development, while the western section of town, where most of the open space is located, will be zoned for 3.25 housing units per acre, with no office-commercial facilities permitted.

In our judgment, this would be a blatantly discriminatory ordinance, since it does not equally distribute community responsibility for affordable housing. The western part of the Township has long been the recipient of favored treatment from the planning board and Township Committee.

We note further that the proposed ordinance offers no guarantee that affordable housing will ever be built and maintained in the number of units needed, especially in the low-income category. Within the last 35 years, no low-income housing has been built in Princeton without major and sustained subsidies from the federal government for capital construction costs, maintenance, operation and administration.

Furthermore the proposed ordinance places a special burden on local developers in the form of fees levied on them for new single family housing units and on new commercial buildings, which would be passed on to the buyer in the form of increased prices. This is another discriminatory feature of the proposed ordinance, since the burden would not be shared by any other institutions in the community, such as banks, businesses, corporations and institutions of higher learning, all of which, directly or indirectly, stand to profit from increased densities.

Your decision has sensitized the community in regard to its responsibility to the problem of affordable housing. People who have never been concerned with this issue have been aroused from apathy and are now facing the reality head on. However, we are very troubled that the determination of the local authorities to create a new ordinance in an atmosphere of panic (Mayor Winthrop Pike has stated publicly on many occasions, "We have a gun to our heads"), will result in a seriously flawed ordinance. Such an ordinance will act as a catalyst for continual litigation by builders, developers and concerned citizens which will further delay the building of affordable housing in Princeton Township. Serious threats of litigation have already been made by various groups.

In light of these factors, why not delay any possible legal actions against the Township and give our community a desperately needed block of time sufficiently adequate to develop an ordinance which will fully meet the fair share requirements of the Mount Laurel II decision in an equitable manner, with no preferential treatment given to any section of the Township. In this time, we will devote ourselves to producing an ordinance that will not be exclusionary and may well stand as a model for the state.

Benefits of Princeton.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I came to Princeton to live 38 years ago, and while my life here has, of course, changed as my children grew up, living in Princeton has always brought me pleasure.

Now that I am a senior citizen and a member of the National Buard of Older Women's League, I am writing to thank Princeton for a benefit relative to my life today. On November 14, my organization, which works to improve the lives and concerns of all older women, hosted a meeting at the Princeton Senior Resource Center, on Spruce Circle off Harrison Street.

Our speaker, Mr. Thomas Weher, spoke to us about the threat to Medicare, an evaluation compiled by the American Association of Retired Persons. This is an extremely important issue for all older people today.

Having such a fine meeting room available to those of us concerned specifically with the issues relating to older people, is one more example of the benefits I continue to enjoy as a citizen of Princeton.

ESTHER C. ABRAMS

Honoring John Flemer.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Margen Penick's suggestion that the Canal Park at Kingston be named in honor of John Flemer, who donated the flowering trees (see TOWN TOPICS, Nov. 14, p 1B), is an excellent idea. John, once my dog's veterinarian, was always a kind and pleasant man. He helped the Stony Brook Millstone Watersheds Association, and his family has long preserved the open-space along the Canal through the Princeton Nurseries. It would indeed be fitting to name the Canal Park after him.

PRIZES ARE LISTED

For Guild Raffle. The YWCA of Princeton is sponsoring its annual raffle for the benefit of the Artisan's Guild. Winners' names will be drawn on Thursday, December 13 at 7 p.m. in the Guild Shop, located in the lounge at the YM-YWCA.

Featured as first prize is a double-bed size quilt in the traditional Bear Paw pattern. Sewn and quilted by Artisan's Guild members, it has a brown background highlighted with primary colors. It has a retail value of $750.

Elaine Brower, an Artisan's Guild consignor, has donated her original 45" square fabric wall hanging as second prize. The wall hanging is constructed of velvet and wool.

A handmade velveteen rabbit is third prize. Created by another consignor, Carolyn Cook Storer, its design is based on the popular childen's book "The Velveteen Rabbit" by Margery Williams. Three $10 gift certificates to be used in the Artisan's Guild Shop will be awarded to three additional winners.

Raffle tickets are priced at $2 apiece or $10 for a book of six. They are on sale at the YWCA desk during office hours, and will also be on sale at Clayton's in Palmer Square on December 1 and 8. Tickets may also be purchased at the Artisan's Guild Shop in the YWCA lounge, which is open from 11 to 3 Tuesday through Friday. The quilt, wall hanging and velveteen rabbit will be displayed at the shop during these times.

The Artisan's Guild is a collective created to promote the production and marketing of quality handwork. Besides operating the shop, which features the work of more than 60 consignors, the Guild offers a wide variety of classes at the YWCA.

For United Way. Johnson & Johnson Baby Products in Skillman and its employees have contributed a record-breaking $104,816 to the United Way - Red Cross campaign of the Princeton area communities. One half of this total came from the employees, and J&J matched their gifts.

James Utaski, president of J&J, and Allen C. Anderson, director of operations, presented the contributions to Francis J. Horsley, executive director of the United Way.

The overall United Way campaign has passed the halfway point of its $1.6 million goal, leaving $800,000 still to be raised. The campaign is running well ahead of last year at this time when it stood at only 30 percent of a smaller goal.

All of the campaign divisions are experiencing solid increases over last year. Employees of most local corporations are being especially generous this year with their donations.

Remarks by Coach Frank Navarro

Following is the text of Coach Frank Nevarro's remarks at the conclusion of the annual Princeton University football banquet last Monday night.

In our family we've been coaching for 31 years --this our 31st year. The way I keep track of that is that I say each year to my wife Jill (Jill is very annoyed when I ask her this) -- "How old is Jack, our third son?" She says, "29." I say "Well, 29 years ago I went to Williams; add two more years and that's how long I've been coaching."

She got very irritated that I keep track of my record that way. But it has been 31 years and after each year Jill and I sit down and we review the season and -- of late, the last three to five years -- we try to decide whether or not, hey, should we go on coaching or should we not go on. When you've been in the profession 31 years and you're 55 years old --or going to be 55 -- when you're an old chestnut like I am, you start thinking about these things.

Well, this year we sat down after the season and talked about it again -- and in our family we have a check and balance system: Jill is a Scotsman so she usually balances everything, I'm the check-writer or the person that is impulsive.

She is the calming kind of person. So after much discussion -- impulsive talk by me and calming kind of talk by Jill, we decided that this year will be our last year that we would go and talk to Bill, our president, and we would ask him to consider early retirement, which he has.

I got to talk to him earlier today; so, we won't be back coaching next year and I must say this: we are looking forward to seeing a winning Princeton football team. We feel that with your captains, with your freshmen, with your recruiting program, with all of that, we're on the right track -- that Princeton football is going to go places -- we're going to start winning those close games.

I am very disappointed for the staff; I wish that I had had time to discuss this with them first but I couldn't; I am very disappointed for the people who are close to me -- like the secretaries; but I am elated thinking about something to do in the next decade, a new career, and I wanted to announce this here and have all the players together so I could speak to them personally, and to have all the coaches here and all of our friends.

It has been an outstanding seven years for us and it has been so gratifying. My family and I have gotten so much out of it and the reason we've gotten so much out of it is because of the fine associations we have had with young people like this. I congratulate a great university for having an outstanding program and for bringing in people like we have here. We'll be following it.

And when you see me sitting in the stands next year, somebody up there watching, don't come and ask me who I am -- say "Coach Who?" when I tell you what my name is. I'll be looking at you guys and I'll be seeing when you start out the season. God bless you and I wish you a lot of luck.

The search for a new coach is to begin immediately and will be directed by Director of Athletics Robert J. Myslik who is expected to consult widely both on and off the campus. Among those to whom Myslik will turn for advice will be Richard C. Pivirotto, chairman of the trustees' Committee on Health and Athletics; Somers K. Steelman, chairman of the Friends of Princeton Football; Dean of Students Eugene Y. Lowe; Vice President for Administrative Affairs Anthony J. Maruca; and Dean of Engineering Robert Jahn who is chairman of the faculty's Advisory Committee on Athletics.

Myslik said that the search will proceed as speedily as possible, consistent with an appropriate outcome. The decision on a new coach has to be made fairly quickly to insure that the recruiting process for next year's freshmen football players will not be adversely affected. Also all members of Navarro's staff face an uncertain future at the moment. A new head coach is always allowed to name his own assistants.

The name of Homer Smith, a standout football player here in the early fifties, has already been mentioned as a possible candidate for the job. Smith has been a head coach at other colleges, including Army.

Navarro, Princeton's 18th head coach in 116 seasons, was appointed in December of 1977 after leading Wabash College (Indiana) to the runner-up position in the NCAA Division III National Championships and being named Eastman Kodak/American Football Coaches Association College Division Coach of the Year.

He had previously spent six years (1968-73) as head coach at Columbia, and five years (1963-67) at Williams College. In 1967, he was named New England College coach of the Year, and in 1971, at Columbia, was honored as the New York Writers Association Eastern College Coach of the Year.

His overall collegiate record is 99-99-6 while his overall record at Princeton against Ivy opponents has been 23-23-3 and his complete record at Princeton has been 29-35-3.

In response to Navarro's remarks, Bowen said how much he admired all that Navarro has given "of himself" to Princeton football and to the University, adding that "while I certainly understand and respect his decision, I accept it with real regret — regret that is both personal and institutional.

"In the view of many of us," Bowen continued, "Coach Navarro and his staff are quite directly responsible for the very significant progress that has been made in rebuilding the football program at Princeton. The positive attributes of this year's team, to which I referred in my remarks earlier, are attributes of the coach himself — and I congratulate him on them. If only the same things could be said of more of us. We shall miss his example.

"Beyond that, Frank Navarro has been responsible for so much 'invisible teaching' that goes right to the heart of the educational goals of Princeton. Yesterday, at the dedication of Forbes College, the architect, Robert Venturi, said that the most important things he had done as an architect were the things least visible, that few if any could see. So it is with much of the best of coaching, and so it is with this outstanding coach and his entire staff.

"We have been so very fortunate to have his leadership and his personal qualities — his honesty, his decency, his intelligence, his fierce integrity, his steadiness, and his quiet courage — built into the foundations of our program. As Coach Navarro is the first to insist, there is more to be done, more progress to be made. But a solid foundation is in place, Frank, and you should take real satisfaction from that. You leave a football program that is much stronger, and much more affirmative in outlook, than the one you found here. I am confident that we can continue to build on the strong base that now exists."

Affordable Housing

want to express my resentment."

"I'll bite my tongue," responded Mayor Pike. "I thought I was protecting our Township from developers' lawsuits." Both were given a scattering of applause.

Earlier in the evening, Township Attorney Edwin Schmierer told of three landowner protests that had been filed in advance of the meeting. By state land use law, if landowners representing 20 percent or more of the land that will be affected by a land use decision file a protest, a two-thirds vote rather than a simple majority is required to adopt the measure.

Three such protests were filed, Mr. Schmierer related. One was a protest by property owners in the OR zone, led by Bryce Thompson, against the development fee on all new development. However, in totaling up the acreage, Mr. Schmierer found that the tracts represented by the protestors did not amount to 20 percent of the 1250 acres of developable land in the Township. A similar protest by the same developers protesting the non-residential contribution to affordable housing failed for the same reason.

However, Mr. Schmierer found that a protest filed by Dr. and Mrs. Peterson, owners of the largest RH site, was in order and would therefore require a two-thirds vote by Committee in order to adopt the ordinance. Through their attorney, William Sutphin, the Petersons sought to restore provisions in the code that would allow them to build medium-priced units at eight to the acre on the 26-acre tract owned in Mrs. Peterson's name between Cherry Valley Road and Route 206.

The Planning Board had recommended deleting these provisions, which were put in place after the 1980 Master Plan and in response to Mount Laurel I, in order to substitute 12-to-the-acre units of lower income and market housing on that and other RH sites. Mr. Sutphin said his clients were prepared to construct from 193-213 units of "least cost" housing on the site, which he felt would contribute to the Mount Laurel II fair share.

Housing consultant Alan Mallach disagreed with Mr. Sutphin's interpretation of Mount Laurel II. "Least cost" housing — interpreted as being up the scale from low and moderate income housing — would not be considered by Judge Serpentelli, in Mr. Mallach's view, unless it can be demonstrated that it is not feasible for a variety of factors, including high land cost, to build the truly low and moderate income housing. Mr. Mallach said the ordinance demonstrates that it is feasible.

After pondering these semantics and the effect of reducing the probability of the tract being developed for Mount Laurel housing, Committee voted 4-1 to delete the section of the ordinance requested by the Petersons. Here, Mayor Pike voted no, "reluctantly." Under the 12-to-the-acre terms of the ordinance, the tract as developed by the Princeton Housing Fund would produce 316 units, of which 158 would be affordable housing.

Still earlier in the evening, Mayor Pike had described, sketchily, the agreement reached with the University concerning its contribution to the Township affordable housing program in exchange for the deletion of the 11-acre Broadmead site.

University Donates RH Site. According to Eugene McPartland, vice president for facilities, the University will make available some 15 acres in the area of West Drive-the Lawrence Apartments for a period of 30 years at no cost to the Township. This tract, the boundaries of which are yet to be drawn, would become an RH site with the highest density of 12 units an acre. Nearby is another RH site of comparable size.

The University will also provide some legal assistance in trying to get graduate student housing counted toward the fair share.

If new graduate student housing becomes eligible under Mount Laurel, the University reserves the option to construct "well over 100 units," — Mr. McPartland preferred not to be pinned down on the number pending more discussion with the Township about its wish to preserve open space, but 15 acres at 12 units an acre would yield 180 units. If the University does not exercise that option, the Township is free to build its own Mount Laurel housing on the site. "Either way," Mr. McPartland remarked, "it counts for Mount Laurel."

Because the Township will not have land costs associated with acquiring the site, the University wants to stipulate that the site he used for affordable housing only and not include the 50 percent moderate-priced market units that are the cornerstone of the financing mechanism for purchasing land and building units on the RH sites. Committee suggested Monday night that the way to handle this might be through a variance, rather than by amendment to the ordinance.

20 Towns in Suit. Mayor Pike also announced that 20 towns have joined in the effort to challenge Mount Laurel on constitutional grounds. Eleven towns have paid the $3,000 initial seed money, and the group has hired the New York law firm of Mudge, Rose and Guthrie to research the feasibility of an appeal to the Supreme Court. One lawyer has said there are "solid legal grounds" for doing so, the mayor reported.

Mayor Pike also reported an initial meeting with the developer that has brought the Mount Laurel suit against the Township in an effort to settle the matter outside of court. "There are encouraging aspects" to this meeting, he said, but declined to say more.

Mastery Program

The report concluded that supplemental instruction had failed, and that the curriculum did not meet the needs of these students.

• Released just this past September, the Winikur Report showed a disproportionate number of Black children classified as handicapped and in special education programs, as well as a number of classifications of handicaps that were not justified.

• Although there has been no official study, observers note that, although a good proportion of Black students from PHS go to college, a significant percentage do not stay.

The Mastery Program combines a somewhat altered curriculum with a strong emphasis on the richness and diversity of the contemporary Black experience.

It also sets up rigorous standards. Each student in this totally voluntary program must meet all rules, be on time, be prepared for school, have all required homework, show courtesy and respect to students and teachers, and be an active participant in classes.

The materials used are related to Black studies as much as possible. In the study of history, there is a far greater emphasis than in the regular curriculum on the Black experience.

A new textbook in mathematics, one which organizes material in a different way, is being used in the program. It appears to be working well.

Former Princeton High School teachers Bill Cook, now teaching literature at Dartmouth, and playwright Don Evans, had both urged such a program while they were at PHS. Both were involved in the year-long planning, and both visit regularly to talk with the students. Mr. Cook, in his three or four trips from Dartmouth since September, has read poetry written by Black authors dealing with the Black experience.

Every Wednesday, Byager Blackwell, a former PHS student and now a film producer in New York, works on film with the students. Tentative plans are to produce a film history of Blacks in Princeton.

Other speakers are regularly brought in. Recently a former PHS student, who had traveled in South Africa, spoke to the students from the unique perspective of an American Black viewing South Africa.

The students have been taken to a college fair that had an emphasis on Black colleges. Plans are in the works for PHS to organize a Minority Day program for Mercer County that will focus on Black colleges, and there will be visits to New York to see plays written by Black playwrights.

Impetus from Community. According to Mr. Sakala, the impetus for the Mastery Program came from the Black community. Concerned that their children were being underserved, and anxious to strengthen the connection between home and school, the parents met weekly with teachers, guidance staff, other interested persons to plan the program. No child may be enrolled without a parent's permission.

The planning process also included trips — with potential students — to schools that had instituted similar programs. Among these were the Motivational School in Philadelphia and St. Bernard's School in Newark. The students responded enthusiastically to both schools, and they were used as models for the Mastery Program.

The parents remain deeply involved. At a Back-to-School night event focusing on the Mastery Program, all but three parents were present.

"I have never seen better feeling in classes — ever," said Mr. Sakala. He sees a whole attitude change as students start to realize that they can be successful in their studies.

He admits that something happens to Black students as they go through the system. "It isn't easy to try and turn around the process at age 14," he says, "but everyone is extremely well motivated to do this."

"I don't know if the Mastery Program is the answer," said Mr. Sakala, "but I know the compensatory programs and small group instruction we have done as a regular part of curriculum didn't work out."

He noted that students in compensatory programs are pulled out of classes and placed in groups of three to four, thus never getting into the flow of the regular classes.

In addition to students formerly receiving compensatory instruction, the Mastery program includes several pupils who had previously been classified as handicapped.

"These kids are bright, articulate and, when they are enthusiastic over something, they can speak remarkably well," said Mr. Sakala. "They know a lot of things, but these things don't come out in regular classrooms. They're coming out here."

He said that the program meant a lot of hard work for the students, as teachers' expectations are very high.

"But there is warmth and caring, and students welcome the opportunity to be in the program. They feel they're getting ahead rather than being in some remedial class because they didn't do well."

The study reports that the likelihood of entrepreneurship among Blacks is significantly below that for other groups. The 111 page report adds to an understanding of entrepreneurship generally, and minority entrepreneurship in particular. Its findings will be used to help guide federal policy formation and resource allocation to promote minority business enterprise.

Princeton Retailer Changes with the Times; He Knows You're Busy and He'll Come to You

A Princeton retailer in business since 1896 has found it necessary to change with the changing times to stay in business

In all those years, Brophy's of Princeton has sold only one thing — top quality shoes to men only. But Tom Brophy Jr has based his new method of selling on the concept that men hate to shop and that their time is valuable.

Tom Brophy

His new system, which he says he has been thinking about for four or five years, is easy and efficient. He has closed his retail store at 20 Nassau Street and replaced it with a 24-hour telephone answering service.

Interested customers should call 921-2030 anytime day or night. "I'll take it from there," says Tom. He will set up an appointment, visit your home or office at a convenient time, and, if necessary, measure your foot. He guarantees fit.

An added incentive — and Mr. Brophy feels it is a considerable one — is his passing his savings in overhead costs on to the customer — up to 20 percent less than the regular retail price.

With the enthusiasm of a born salesman, the 43-year-old Brophy reports that he is excited about his new service and claims that he is busier than ever. "It's enabled me to become an aggressive retailer instead of a passive one," he said. "When you sit in a store nine hours a day you don't know what's going on out there; you've got to change with the times." Because he sells only to men and since most men are tied up from 9 to 5, Mr. Brophy found that the only day he was busy was on Saturday.

"There are a lot of corporate people out there who never had the opportunity to buy Brophy shoes, he said. "How they look is important. Now they can buy the finest footwear available at a lower price — at their convenience."

BUSINESS

Through the years, Mr. Brophy's principal supplier has been the Alden Shoe Company of Middleboro, Mass. "In my opinion," he says, "the finest shoe manufacturer in the world. If you are a traditional dresser and not wearing Alden shoes you should be."

One other advantage Mr Brophy sees in buying from him is the expertise he has gained in 23 years of selling shoes. "I know the traditional market extremely well," he says.

"I have an unbelievable memory for shoe sizes I must have 4,000 in my head. Give me a name of any customer of mine and I can tell you exactly what size he wears."

No Perfect 9D. Knowing how a shoe is sized is important, says Mr. Brophy "There is no such thing as a perfect 9D You have to know how shoes are made

"There is no way a narrow cut tassle loafer will fit the same way as a plain toe cordovan hrogue because they are two different shapes. Many times a customer will buy three different shoes from me and I'll sell him three different sizes." The reason, explains Mr. Brophy is because three different lasts were used — the piece of wood molding used by manufacturers to shape the shoe.

"A good shoe salesman has got to know how shoes are made. Most salesmen just ask you what your size is. They don't know anything about shoes or lasts."

"There is nothing worse," adds Mr. Brophy, "than looking at a professional salesman in a $500 suit and a $35 pair of shoes. The first thing a salesman looks at in another salesman is his shoes

"It's the most glaring part of a man's dress. Shoes come first. In fact, a guy doesn't have to say a word to me and in five seconds I can size him up immediately.

"The thing is I can dress these professionals in quality and comfort."

Started in 1896. Brophy Shoes was started in 1896 by Mr. Brophy's great uncle, Edward Brophy, who lived on Jefferson Road. His father bought the business in 1937 and located it in the old Upper Pyne building on Nassau Street — just about where the front door of the Princeton Bank and Trust is now, observed Mr. Brophy.

His father, an avid golfer who died in 1969, moved the store to 5 Palmer Square in 1955 where it remained for 27 years until 1982 when Mr Brophy moved to 20 Nassau Street.

Young Tom, born and raised in Princeton and a Princetnn High graduate (his 1959 class will celebrate its 25th reunion this month) started selling shoes when he was 15. "I officially joined the business in 1964," recalled Mr. Brophy.

So it is not goodhye but hello to what he hopes will be a lot of new customers. As Mr. Brophy stated in a recent advertisement, "The legend lives on!"

More than that, HealthWays covers all the Medicare deductibles for both physicians and hospitals. So I have virtually no out-of-pocket medical expenses. And no Medicare claim forms to file.

With HealthWays, I can choose from over 1,000 participating physicians. My own doctor is a participant and I see him in his private office as usual. But now a visit only costs me $3.00 including lab tests, x-rays, unlimited routine office visits and more. Even if I'm on a trip, HealthWays covers any emergency.

Getting older does mean getting wiser. That's why I joined HealthWays. So if you're on Medicare, you should be in HealthWays too."

will be constructed around a new courtyard on the former school grounds.

Academy Court has been designed by architect Perry Morgan of Holt & Morgan Associates in Princeton. Mr. Morgan has restored several historic properties in New Jersey, including Constitution Hill in Princeton.

The concept for the conversion began in March, 1982, when the Hopewell Valley Board of Education decided to move its offices from the former primary school and to put the building up for sale. Pennington broker Eleanor Suydam of Suydam Realty contacted Mr. Morgan with the idea of converting the old school building into condominiums.

Over the next year, Mr. Morgan and Mrs. Suydam, joined by Robert Clancy of Clancy Associates in Princeton, began plans for the Academy Court project. Mr. Morgan and Mr. Clancy formed P.M.R.C., Inc., to handle the development of the condominiums.

Academy Court will offer a range of unit sizes, from studios to two-bedrooms-with-study. Prices will range from $66,000 to $167,500.

The sermon on Thanksgiving will include passages from the Scriptures and accompanying selections from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by the founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy. The lesson readings will emphasize that Thanksgiving is far more than a passive postlude to blessings.

During the hour-long service the congregation will share hymns of praise, brief silent prayer and the Lord's prayer. The latter portion of the meeting has been set aside for spontaneous testimonies of gratitude to God.

All Christian Science services are open to the community, and families and neighbors are invited to attend this special annual gathering.

OBITUARIES

Dr. Harry R. McPhee, a nationally known U.S. Olympic physician and authority in the field of student health who specialized in the prevention and treatment of athletic injuries, died November 18 as a result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

He was 89 years old and lived in Sykesville, Md., where he and his wife, Mary Ziegler McPhee moved four years ago. They had lived in Princeton for 52 years.

Dr. McPhee joined the Princeton faculty in the Health and Physical Education department in 1928 and was head physician of the varsity football team for 31 years before retiring from the University in 1964. During his tenure at Princeton he also served as the U.S. team physician at the Olympic Games in Helsinki, Rome, Tokyo and Innshruck, and at three Pan-American Games.

Born in Youngstown, Ohio, he received a bachelor's degree in physical education in 1917 from Oberlin College, where he was a track and field athlete, played football and was captain of basketball. Following 18 months in France as a medical corpsman, he entered medical school at Case Western Reserve University.

After graduntion in 1924 and intern's training at St. Luke's Hospital in Cleveland, he combined private practice and service as a member of the medical staff and team physician at Iowa State College for four years. It was there Dr. McPhee brought together his two greatest loves — sports and medicine. His contributions to the physical safety of football players have included developing the neck and face guards and other equipment.

In 1965 an award was created at Princeton to honor Dr. McPhee. It is presented annually to "that member of the football squad whose fortitude and durability have made him a prime source of strength to the team."

Dr. McPhee had a special interest in tuberculosis research and was a member of the American Trudeau Society. He was a past president of the New Jersey - Pennsylvania division of the American Student Health Association, a member of the Borough Board of Health and of the Princeton draft board, an organizer of Princeton's Civil Defense Council, and an elder of the First Presbyterian Church of Princeton.

In addition to his wife, he is survived by two sons, H. Roemer of Potomac, Md., and John of Princeton; a daughter, Laura A. Burton, of Gibson Island, Md.; and 12 grandchildren.

FUTURE SHOCK!!!

Who ever would have thought that our country's economy could be bouncing off the ropes from the wild, double digit inflation rate we witnessed not too long ago. Fortunately, the inflation rate is coming down out of the stratosphere, but it is taking a lot of economic pain as a side effect. Inflation hurts us all. Even a little is too much. The price of housing is a good example.

What would happen to housing prices with a 10% yearly cost-of-living increase? A home that cost $60,000 now would increase to $155,624 in ten years. In 20 years it would cost $403,650. In 30 years it would sell for $1,046,964 (over a million dollars).

Whatever your age, you must find a way to create an income in addition to your pay check. Although there is no perfect investment, real estate may be the nearest thing to it. It can be an income producer, a shelter from high taxes, and an ideal protection fromn the ravages of inflation. Real estate values historically increase faster than general inflation prices and maintain a higher value than most assets in depression. The ideal hedge.

HIGHLIGHT of the WEEK

A LOT OF HOUSE FOR YOUR MONEY!

in this early Salzman house on highly desirable Crestview Drive, just minutes from Downtown Princeton. Solidly built, and customized for its present and original owners, it nestles under towering oaks on one and a half acres - but offers an area of sunlit lawn as well.

The five bedroom, four bath house offers perfect separation for family and guests - with maid's room (or teen ager's on a lower level). Living room and panelled library with built-in cupboards and bookcases (perhaps the coziest room) both have fireplaces.

Plaster walls, central air, attic fan and extras too numerous to mention. But above all, wonderful spacious bedrooms, storage and closet areas. This is definitely a house to see.

Bach Expert William Scheide the Catalyst For Tercentenery Festival of Bach Cantatas

William H Scheide has spent a lifetime in musicological research devoted to the music of Johann Sebastian Bach

The research has been conducted on his own and outside academia, but his knowledge of Bach's music is encyclopedic, and his ability to identify complete works from hearing only a few lines of a melody or harmonies is legendary, even among Bach scholars

Mr Scheide is a man of means and a collector, as well as a scholar and musicologist. Bach authorities from Germany and England come to Firestone Library to study his collection of photostat Bach manuscripts, which are said to be the best anywhere, and to gather for what amounts to colloquiums in the Scheide home on Library Place.

On one living room wall hangs the only real Bach portrait in existence, a priceless lifesize painting which Mr. Scheide managed to acquire in the late 1940s. He likes to tell the story of how his daughter Barbara, then in grade school, answered a playmate's query as to the identity of the rather grumpy looking man in the portrait. "That's the man who writes my Daddy's music," she said.

Founds Performing Group. A graduate of Princeton University, Class of 1936, he studied music, particularly the music of Bach and Beethoven, as a graduate student at Columbia and taught music for a time at Cornell. In 1946, the year he moved to Princeton, he founded the Bach Aria Group, a New York City chamber instrumental ensemble with a cadre of fine singers.

The idea originally was to emphasize arias, for Mr. Scheide believes they contain the greatest oboe and flute music ever written, along with much of the greatest violin and cello music. "I felt Bach was laboring under a handicap," he says. "He was thought to be learned, formidable, and unapproachable, but I discovered by him the loveliest melodies I'd ever seen.

"At first there weren't many recordings of this music, and I thought, 'this is terrible. Anyone who likes a tune would like to hear this music.'" The Bach Aria Group gave some 15-20 concerts a year, including a sold-out series at Town Hall and a tour in this country and abroad

Logical Involvement. Thus, as the 300th anniversary of Bach's birth in 1685 approached, it was logical, if any celebration was planned in Princeton, that Mr Scheide would be at the center of the preparations. The weekend of November 30-December 1 will mark the opening of a Tercentenary Festival of Bach Cantatas that will cover four programs, each repeated once, to be held in February and March as well.

The Festival will feature the Westminster Choir, the Bach Festival Orchestra and 10 soloists. Alternating as conductors will be Joseph Flummerfelt, conductor of the Westminster Choir who will lead the first (November 30-December 1) and third (March 2) pair of concerts, and Mordecai Sheinkman, conductor of the Princeton University Orchestra, who will lead the second (February 8-9) and fourth (March 3) pair.

In the course of the four programs Princeton music lovers will have an opportunity to hear 15 Bach cantatas. Mr. Scheide has long felt that in comparison to the organ works, orchestral pieces such as the Brandenburg Concerti, the great Christmas Oratorio, St. Matthew Passion and the B-Minor Mass, the cantatas are the neglected step-child in terms of performance and recognition.

He likes to quote Albert Schweitzer in his Bach biography of 80 years ago: "In comparison with the cantatas, everything else that Bach has done appears as hardly more than a supplement." And he likens the situation to Shakespeare without a theatre.

Filling a Gap. "This tercentenary series of concerts is an attempt to fill a little of a truly enormous gap in public knowledge of the work of as great a figure as Bach is generally admitted to be," Mr. Scheide says.

There is a great deal of Bach's life about which very little is known, he says. But of the first two years of the 27 years in which Bach served as organist and choir director of the St. Thomas and the St. Nicholas churches in Leipzig, much is known.

For one thing, his duties required him to compose a 30-minute cantata for chorus, soloists and orchestra each week to be performed in the context of the Sunday and holiday services. Often based on a chorale or Lutheran hymn tune well-known to the congregation, these cantatas were tied to the Old and New Testament readings for a particular Sunday in the church year, starting with Advent.

In selecting the cantatas to be performed at the Festival, Mr. Scheide has zeroed in on the first two years in Leipzig, May to May, 1723-1725. He can demonstrate how during the second year Bach stuck with a basic form, beginning with a chorus and ending with the chorale, with solo parts in the middle.

He can show how toward the end of the summer of the first year, he began instead with the Biblical text, enlarging and embellishing with orchestral "word pictures" to the point where the choir and orchestra — and even the congregation — may have found it too complicated. Because there is a dramatic switch, as Mr Scheide can show, to something far simpler for the following week.

The first program on November 30-December 1 con-

TARZAN, SCI-FI DUE

At Kresge. Two films have been booked for the Thanksgiving weekend and beyond at Kresge Auditorium in the Movies-from-McCarter series.

They are Greystoke: The Legend of Tarzan, Lord of the Apes and Liquid Sky. Greystoke will be shown Friday through Sunday, November 23-25 at 7:15 and 9:30, and Liquid Sky will follow, Monday through Wednesday, November 26-28, also at 7:15 and 9:30.

In Greystoke, director Hugh Hudson recounts the background of Tarzan (Christopher Lambert), born the 7th Earl of Greystoke six months after his parents are shipwrecked off the Ivory Coast. Adopted and raised from infancy to manhood by a large family of chimpanzees, he is discovered by a passing Belgian explorer (Ian Holm) who introduces him to spoken language and the ways of civilized society.

Brought back to England and his patrimony, Tarzan as the Lord of Greystoke fits uneasily into English society, despite the attentions of his grandfather, the old Earl of Greystoke, played by Sir Ralph Richardson in what was to be his last film role. In time, the old Earl's death and that of Tarzan's "ape" father turn the noble savage into a permanent outsider, and the film ends with his heading back to the bush to invent a life between two communities neither of which he can fully join.

Liquid Sky was written, produced and directed by Soviet emigre director Slava Tsukerman for only $400,000. It has been playing to packed houses in New York for more than two years. Part science fiction thriller and part Warholian spoof of New York's punk music and fashion scene, Liquid Sky deals with aliens who, searching for ecstasy, have come to earth to kill and vaporize humans during the act of sexual intercourse.

The victims are all denizens of New York's underground scene — zombies of the spirit, existing on fixes of drugs and sex, for whom death is the ultimate "high." Photographed in day-glo colors, and scored with electronic music, Liquid Sky touches on virtually every anti-social attitude imaginable, and McCarter warns that it is not for the prudish.

Coupon books for Movies-from-McCarter are available at 12 for $20 or 24 for $35. To purchase coupon books, call McCarter's box office at 452-5200. Coupon books and single tickets at $3 are available at the door of Kresge Auditorium one half hour before show time.

Kresge Auditorium is located in the Frick Chemical Building, Washington Road.

'BROWN SUGAR'

Rick Khan, who directed the Crossroads production of Ain't Misbehavin' last season will direct this version of the Rosetta LeNoire musical. Mr. Khan, the Crossroads executive director, has also directed Don't Bother Me I Can't Cope, Raisin and Purlie.

The musical combines the old Harlem hits by Eubie Blake, Duke Ellington, Billie Holiday, Cab Calloway, Earl

LET'S TALK ABOUT

WINTER PROTECTION FOR YOUR PLANTS – PART II

with Sam DeTuro
Woodwinds Associates

Mice and rats often dig down into planting of spring bulbs and create havoc. Scattering mothballs may help deter. Some gardeners, in fact, bury mothballs among the bulbs at planting time. If the problem persists, poisonous baits may be used. Take care to provide protection for pets and children, as directed on the container.

Mice, moles and rabbits often attack the bark of certain trees and shrubs. In our area we have to worry about the deer also. Keep mulch, sod, and ground cover away from the base of the stems or trunk. If the snow gets deep enough to enable these pests to reach above protective devices, trample it down. There are as many theories for protecting your shrubbery from deer as there are deer. Some of the most popular are sprinkling bloodmeal around the plant and hanging bags of human hair on the shrubs. The one repellent we have had the most success with is that of tobasco sprayed on with an antidesiccant. This should be sprayed on the shrubs a few times during the winter.

Don't forget that snow and ice storms can break, crack and bend lots of trees and shrubbery. The worst thing you can do is to whack at them with a broom or snow shovel, as everything is frozen and you'll be sure to do some damage. In case of a light, fluffy snow, though, you can relieve the burden on the plant by gently bumping the limbs upward to shake the snow loose.

We do hope these tips have been informative and helpful. Do call us at WOODWINDS (924-3500) if you have any questions.

MUSICAL PLAYING

In Franklin. A musical extravaganza about a naive young man coming to terms with the real world is the subject of the long-running Broadway hit now playing at the Franklin Villagers Barn Theatre, located on DeMott Lane, Somerset.

"Pippin" is the title of the show, as well as the name of its Candide-like hero, played by Steven Shepard. His story is conjured up by a colorful troupe of traveling actors, led by Dudley Ingram as Leading Player, a fast-talking, high-stepping master of ceremonies.

Pippin's grandmother, played by Dorothy Digrius, sings her philosophy, while Charlemagne, played by Greg Weber, leads a hard-living, hard-praying life. Pippin's step-mother, Fastrada, is played by Vikki Tripodo, who was seen in the Villagers' production of "Chicago."

Kim White takes the role of Catherine, the widow Pippin loves, and Theo, her son, is played by Brian Fishbein. Others in the cast are Ellen Aaronson, Joe Stanton, Diane Damanski, Rob Waring, Sharon Dunn, David White, Barbara Liddy, Gordon Wiener and Alice Longo.

David White is designing the sets and decorating them, along with doing the special costume effects. Other costumes are by Barbara Freeman and Karen Preuss. Peggy Skorupsky is the musical director; TJ Moskalski the choreographer, and John Cramer the director.

Tickets for "Pippin" are $8 Fridays and Sundays; $9 Saturdays. Performances are 8:30 p.m. Fridays and Saturdays; 7:30 p.m. Sundays. A 3 p.m. matinee is set for Sunday, December 2.

For information, call the Villagers Barn Theatre box office at (201) 873-2710.

Contemporary Violin Concerto Is the Highlight Of Chamber Symphony's First '84-'85 Concert

The Chamber Symphony of Princeton, formerly the Little Orchestra of Princeton, gave the first concert of its 1984-85 season at Princeton High School auditorium on Sunday, November 18. Conductor Portia Sonnenfeld explained that the name change was necessitated by the enlarged forces of the orchestra and by her choice of repertoire. This season, Sonnenfeld will also expand upon her tendency to present seldom-heard works, as well as U.S. and world premieres and appearances by noted soloists, mostly from this area.

This particular performance featured soprano Judith Nicosia performing works by Mozart and Schoenberg, and violinist Yfrah Neaman in the U.S. premiere by the Polish composer, Andrzej Panufnik.

Sonnenfeld opened this concert with Mendelssohn's Symphony No. 4, also known as the "Italian" Symphony, a work which was well-suited to the expanded forces of the Chamber Symphony. The strings showed strength and unity in their sound, although the cellos were a bit thin at the beginning of the work. In the lovely second movement, the winds played sublimely, blending beautifully with the strings. The work's last movement was played with great energy as the orchestra spun out its triplet melody with a definite feel for its dance-like origins.

Appearing for the second time with the Chamber Symphony, soprano Judith Nicosia performed two rarely heard works: Mozart's "Misera, dove son!" (K. 369) and "Lied der Waldtaube" from Schoenberg's "Gurrelieder."

In the Mozart, Nicosia sang with superb control over the work's long, sustained crescendi, and demonstrated excellent flexibility in handling Mozart's Italianesque ornamentations. The low tessitura of the piece by Schoenberg revealed Nicosia's dark chest voice, and the odd leaps of its expressionistic melody were deftly traversed.

It is unusual to find a singer who can perform such divergent styles of music, especially when sung one after the other as they were in this concert. This is indicative of the fine musicianship of this superb soprano.

The orchestra served well in its role as accompaniment in both these works. It lent support to the soloist without overbalancing, though in the Schoenberg it was a little weak both in ensemble and intonation.

Concerto Is Highlight. The highlight of this concert was Andrzej Panufnik's Violin Concerto. Panufnik is a Polish expatriot whose music was considered too formalist for the post World War II regimes. Since 1954 he has lived and worked in England, both as conductor and composer. He now spends most of his time in composition and makes occasional appearances as a conductor throughout Great Britain.

Melodically, Panufnik's concerto dealt largely with relationships of thirds and seconds around a definite tonal center, giving the music an almost tonal sense. His ideas were developed from a few carefully chosen motives which were moulded into a clearly audible coherency, making the work both comprehensible and enjoyable. In the third movement, this melodic and harmonic matrix was fired with cross-rhythms and metric ambiguity, while in the second, it was given a contemplative, almost spiritual, feeling.

The soloist for Panufnik's concerto was Yfrah Neaman, a violinist noted for his performances of works by contemporary composers. Neaman, who also has performed previously with this orchestra, played the concerto most confidently with an air of authority. His tone was richly varied and his intonation consistent. Owing in part to the lyrical nature of the writing, Neaman's playing emphasized the motivic interweaving between soloist and orchestra and his command of the timbral variety of his instrument.

This score provided a great challenge to the orchestra, one which it met with varying degrees of success. Though there were some problems with ensemble in the first and last movements, the strings never lost their fine tone and musicality. Given a little more rehearsal time, their performance of this difficult work would have been profoundly moving.

Princeton Stores Have Wide Selection of Gifts To Make Holiday Season Shopping a Pleasure

A town such as Princeton, steeped in tradition, becomes playful and joyous during the coming weeks in preparation for Christmas. The streets and shops are beginning to "dress up" while merchants, mindful of the town's penchant for cherished customs, have filled their shops with old-fashioned treasures, carefully selected gifts which are of the finest quality, baskets full of traditional Christmas fare, and handsome classic clothing — all of which will meet the needs of the most discriminating shopper.

THE CUMMINS SHOP IS AGLITTER with old-fashioned glass ornaments this year. Bright red apples sold by the box, tiny knit sweaters and caps, baby's first Christmas in a lacy cradle are among the ornaments on view. Christmas china, linens, nutcrackers, and gifts of crystal and glass are good ideas here.

Christmas has already arrived at The Cummins Shop, where a glittering white tree, the first to be seen in town, is dressed with hundreds of distinctive ornaments, many of which are the old-fashioned glass variety. Hertha Patrone, the shop's manager, has chosen a vast selection of Christmas decorations and gifts which are unusually pretty this year.

"It's whimsical Christmas here this season. Beautiful nutcrackers, music boxes for children and adults, the traditional Christmas earthenware by Spode, Lenox and Cuthbertson of England, wonderful linens in new designs, and of course our famous wood pyramid creches are already selling well," says Mrs. Patrone.

IT'S NEW To Us

The nutcrackers, some from the ballet, others, such as Santa and Pinocchio, begin at $19 and their relatives — hand-carved figures which actually smoke, such as Captain Hook and a fireman — start at $12. Music boxes are irresistible treasures to keep. One plays "It's a Small World" while a tiny train chugs through a mountainside.

Those fortunate enough to have a collection of Christmas china would appreciate the matching Christmas mats by Pimpernel of England. Acrylic coated, they come in two sizes in boxes of four.

In the spirit of the season, animal figures are in great demand. The Cummins shop has sheep which baa, a family of white ceramic ducks, glass elephant ornaments, and creche figures on display throughout the shop. Traditional snow scenes at $5, $10 and $25, a papier mache Father Christmas, Scrooge in his nightclothes, tiny candle houses, and a $6 ceramic basket threaded with red ribbon should not be missed.

A whole wall full of hanging ornaments will greet the shopper. Tree top angels, baby's first Christmas in a lacey cradle, boxes of bright red apples in different sizes, and tiny red and green sweaters, mittens, caps and gloves are good collectibles. The gift section will yield a wealth of glass, crystal, silver and brass gifts for the holidays.

Clayton's Yarn Shop. A needleworker's delight this Christmas would be one of the handsome reproductions suitable for needlepoint or crewel work seen in the window display at Clayton's Yarn Shop. The reproductions of the Chippendale, Hepplewhite and Queen Anne periods are made of solid Honduran mahogany by Freeman and Co. The benches, fireside stools, trays, a Gloucester Court stool, a deacon's stool, and a fireside screen make timeless gifts which will afford many hours of pleasure for those fond of doing needlework and will be cherished for generations to come.

There is still plenty of time to make other Christmas keepsakes such as the hand-painted Christmas stocking, an ideal grandmother's gift, three-dimensional ornaments, frames, eyeglass cases, or perhaps a checkbook cover.

Clayton's veteran knitter par excellence, Mavis Potter, will be on hand to guide beginning knitters this month while they finish their first project — whether it be a small ornament or a lovely sweater. What could be a better gift for your favorite knitter than a set of six wooden needles of black walnut in a black watch plaid Pendleton case for $57?

Other gift ideas from the Yarn Shop include knitting books and lined bags with a snap case in pretty quilted fabrics, stork scissors for $13 in hand-embroidered cases for the same price, or perhaps skeins of gorgeous yarns for which the shop is so famous. Silk blends, mohair, alpaca, and Tahke tweeds are among the selections.

Although Squire's Choice has just celebrated its first anniversary, it seems as if the shop has become a permanent institution in Princeton. The tiny food shop in Palmer Square is a favorite gathering spot in late morning, when the freshly baked croissants are ready and patrons come in for their daily cup of imported coffee or a delicious box lunch.

Shopping as well as eating is a treat here especially during this coming month. Custom-stocked baskets of gourmet foods, from $15, will be prepared by Squire's Choice. Duck baskets are $16.50 and oval ones lined in red plaid taffeta are $10.

The food shop, which originally sold nuts in Yardley, will fill the basket to the shopper's heart's content with their famous fare of cashews, macadamia, peanuts, pistachios, and a cocktail nut mix (all roasted on the premises) packaged in gaily colored polka-dot boxes. One side of the country store is devoted to gourmet items from the Silver Palate, Mister Bumble, Clearbrook Farm and Sable and Rosefeld, to mention a few. Jams, preserves, honeys made in Princeton, Downey's Irish whiskey cake, Lazzaroni confections, fresh peanut brittle, and imported biscuits and crackers are among the goodies from which to choose. The shop will mail the baskets anywhere in the U.S.

A delicious variety of cheese spread made by the talented Swiss cooks at Squire's Choice will last up to two weeks refrigerated, and more than five days at room temperature, so there is plenty of time to include them in the gift baskets. Garlicky bagel chips are tasty companions to the spreads.

The cooler will yield a wonderful array of cheeses for which the shop has become well known. Sweets, homemade cookies, and the shop's own gingerbread boys, will complete the gift basket, a gift to appeal to everyone in the family. The gourmet shop looks forward to catering many Christmas parties during the season.

What could be a more welcome gift during the holidays than a sumptuous gift of food from Toto's? Albert Toto has a cache of delicious foodstuffs, such as imported jams and jellies, exotic teas, British crackers, more than 40 cheeses, and canned specialties such as unusual soups — all of which can be attractively arranged in a gift basket and sent anywhere in the United States.

Toto's will ship their fine meats all over the continental United States as well. While strip steaks and filets are the most popular food item to send to a friend or loved one, roasts of lamb, pork and beef can be shipped too. Many of Toto's customers enjoy sending the handsomely packaged Pacific northwest salmon cured in the Indian manner and preserved so that no refrigeration is required. At only $39.99 this is an unusual gift well worth looking into.

While many Princetonians prefer a traditional fare during the holidays, ranging from smoked turkey and ham to quail, duckling, geese and venison, Toto's will make sure that the palate seeking the more exotic is satisfied! Wild boar, llama, lion meat, elk, New Zealand venison, rattlesnake meat, buffalo, and eland can be ordered subject to availability. Who could imagine having camel for Christmas dinner? At Toto's, it is possible.

There are a number of interesting small gifts on view at Toto's this month, such as a 17½ ounce jar of Pommery mustard for $4.39, a tin of Lazzaroni macaroons, a wedge of pate, or perhaps a small basket filled with an assortment of cheeses.

Toto's is famous in town for its excellent party platters. With 48 hours notice, a wonderful assortment of cheeses and cold cuts can be prepared, leaving the hosts ample time for fun while entertaining.

A "wicked" chocolate truffle cake made with eggs, pure butter, dark chocolate, and sugar which tastes like a rich piece of candy nicely packaged in four- or 16-ounce boxes is a good gift from Toto's this season. Freshly baked pumpkin, mince, coconut, and apple pies will be available this month as well.

Let Toto's do the cooking. Smoked ham with or without the bone, roast beef precooked and sliced, smoked turkey, and a holiday Virginia ham cooked with cloves, cherries and pineapples will have that home-cooked flavor every hostess seeks without the hassle of finding time to prepare them.

The good news is that the food shop will probably be open on Sunday, December 23, to accommodate customers. It will close early on Christmas eve, so put in your orders early for one of the finest selections of quality meats in town.

Strolling down to The Silver Shop on Palmer Square, the shopper can find highly polished presentations for holiday gifts and entertaining. Hand-made English silver-plated frames set in dark blue velvet in the Victorian style, circa 1905, are elegant gifts at $32.

A distinctive collection of scent bottles from Bennington, England — one with an old monogram — will please the discriminating woman. A collector might enjoy a 1907 English silver match holder or a Dutch tea strainer.

'Tis the season for holiday cheer. An elegant well-priced

Gifts under $10

Cashmere blended socks from Landau's will be a welcome gift at $10. A nice hostess gift might be a delicious jar of Pommery mustard from Toto's.

Bandannas in all colors and all-cotton t-neck jerseys for only $7.95 are seen in the Army Navy Store.

Hand-made designer earrings from a la Mode will dangle while the wearer is dancing in one of the shop's pretty party dresses.

Tiny teddies from The Country Mouse will be enjoyed by all this Christmas. Many are priced under $10.

punch set complete with tray, ladle, bowl, and cups, is only $225. Frames of sterling, plate, and polished pewter are excellent gifts.

Handsome serving dishes of silver or plate take on a special significance during the holidays. The Silver Shop has a fine assortment from which to choose, including a useful double-footed serving piece with two pyrex dishes heated from beneath by candles.

A hand-hammered old American coffee set with creamer, sugar, and pot is a lovely present at $175. Shining salt and peppers, candlesticks of all sizes and shapes, wine coasters in three different styles for that very special vintage wine, and a three-quart footed serving piece in the Queen Anne style are other ideas from the Silver Shop.

ELEGANT GIFTS OF SILVER: Keepsakes which can be passed down through the generations, can be seen at the Silver Shop. John Cassady is seen here in front of a table laden with a handsome silver punch bowl, antique serving spoons, handsome Victorian frame set in velvet, and serving dishes for the holidays.

There is a cozy corner at Nassau Interiors fit for a king this Christmas. A handsome mahogany desk, one of many styles in the decorating shop, unusual lamps such as the snooty fox dressed in hunting clothes leaning against a brass horn, stunning large brass bookends, hand-made wood decoys, and a comfy leather chair, are offset by the draping of Christmas tartan.

Numerous gift ideas for the home can be found in the shop, which specializes in quality appointments. Trivets made by the Virginia metalcrafters, candlesticks in all sizes from the American museum brass collection by Baldwin, horses' heads, elephants and ducks in brass and wood, even lamp shades which sport Christmas wreaths, await the shopper.

If you are thinking of sprucing up the house a bit for holiday entertaining, Nassau Interiors offers an excellent selection of lampshades, including the favored cut-out ones. Glass hurricanes covering shining candlesticks of silver or brass are associated with the holiday season. They look festive when tied with bright red ribbons.

Nassau Interiors has a fine selection of old prints and reproductions. A series of school prints of Lawrenceville, Andover, Choate, Yale and Exeter Academy are nice gift ideas, as are the sports prints for polo buffs.

A treasure to keep will be appreciated by everyone this Christmas. Lovely porcelains, hand-carved decoys, carved fruits and animals, and other barnyard primitives on pedestals are nice options.

Every man's wardrobe needs a bit of new color and a dash of updated fashion. Princeton Clothing has several reasonably-priced gifts to please him. Washable wool V-neck and crew neck sweaters in soft blue, navy, a warm pink, grey, black and cocoa at only $27. The cable version is $32.

Duofold turtle neck shirts at $17.50 can be worn all winter under sweaters or under one of the shop's tartan plaid flannel or all-cotton shirts. Wool plaids will keep him cozy on winter weekends.

The sleeveless sweater has made a big comeback this fall. Argyle patterns found at Princeton Clothing will look stunning with crisp Van Husen dress shirts in solids or stripes, some with white collars, or button-downs by Arrow.

The perfect gift for your Santa on the night before Christmas is the bold red and white stripe nightgown seen in the window. Flannel pajamas are only $16. All wool tartan scarves will look dashing around a hand-woven Harris tweed sports coat for $175. Shetland jackets are equally reasonable for $145. Navy blazers are available in flannel and hopsack. Cords, plaids, and wool flannels complete the casual look.

Does a special man need a new warm coat? Dress coats in herringbone, raincoats with zip-out linings, and the plaid-lined duffel coat at $135, are all good choices. Club ties with tennis, polo, and squash players, and jolly Santas are found in this versatile men's store, which also specializes in custom-made evening clothes, as well as a good supply of rentals for holiday parties.

All that glitters at Jewels by Juliana, on Witherspoon Street, is gold or diamonds, or semi-precious stones, or cultured pearls. The small shop is filled with gorgeous necklaces, pendants which may double as pins, bracelets, earrings, and rings, all handmade by the owner, and all of which will please any woman this Christmas.

Alluring twists of pink, black, purple or white freshwater pearls, combined with gold beads and with a gold clasp, are one of Juliana's specialties. Striking gemstones such as amber, jade, lapis, citrine, or carnelian, make stunning necklaces.

There are a number of rings and watches for men and women in the jewelry shop. Rubies, garnets, amethysts, emeralds, and topaz are among the selection.

Juliana, who has so many orders for Christmas already that she is working every Sunday, has a definite flare for interesting combinations of stones. She enjoys the more unusual gemstones such as dendrite quartz, mookite, rhodochrosite, zosite, and multi-colored tourmaline. Orders for custom-made jewelry should be made as soon as possible.

The Army-Navy Store on Witherspoon Street has several well-priced gifts for men and women who prefer the unisex look. The ever-popular rugby shirt begins at $16 here. men — 40 different styles — and those made by Salvatore Ferragamo, including a patent slip-on dancing shoe, can be seen at Ricchard's.

Sometimes practicality takes priority over chic. Ricchard's carries the complete line of Allen Edmonds, Alden and Footjoy and casual footwear for men by Rocsports of Rockport.

Since 1891 Princetonians have been buying shining new bicycles at Kopp's to put next to the Christmas tree. The inventory continues to grow, including an abundance of smaller gift items for the ever-growing community of cycling enthusiasts.

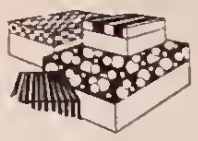
Why not treat your favorite cyclist to a cyclo-computer, which tells speed, distance and duration of a ride for $49.95. Panniers, bags which fit on the rear of the touring bike, begin at $25. A wealth of bags of all sizes and shapes suitable for safe riding fill Kopp's on Witherspoon Street.

What youngster would not delight in a brand new BMX dirt bike? All-alloy 10-speeds begin at $159.95. Bicycles by Schwinn, Miyata, and Peugeot are well-stocked here. A $10 deposit will hold any bike until Christmas. It is wise to convince a new cyclist to wear a helmet. They begin at $25.

Comfort is key while riding, especially during the colder months. Seat covers, grips, creams and lotions and many other comfort aids will pamper your cyclist.

You do not have to brave the winter winds to enjoy cycling during this season. Kopp's offers a number of fine indoor trainers and exercisers by Schwinn. The indoor ten-speed trainer is $89.95 and a best buy in indoor exercisers is Schwinn's Excelsior X-RB, an air-dyne system which exercises the upper and lower body separately or simultaneously, thus affording a complete workout without adding levers, weights or ropes.

The "ultimate fitness machine," says Kopp's, used by health clubs all over the world, is a wonderful family gift. Accessories for the exerciser available in the bike shop include a pulsemeter, a digital countdown timer, a workload indicator, a reading stand and an air-dyne wind deflector.



All is glitter at a la Mode this season. Sweaters, wool jersey dresses, blouses — even a few hats — are dressed up with shining sequins and beads. Brilliant rhinestone jewelry is important for the total look according to the shop's owner, Jan Olaz, who has a knack for finding unusual clothing which appeals to young girls and their mothers. It will be easy to find a gift to please here.

Black is synonymous with chic in Europe these days, it is said. A la Mode has several stunning black dresses in wool, slinky silk, or sweatering. They all sport jet or sequined beading at the collar or around the whole yoke. There are several well-priced party dresses in gay colors too. In fact, a rainbow of vivid color can be seen in all of the accessories and fashion touches here: angora gloves and new mitts are worn in wildly colorful combinations such as orange and shocking pink. The gloves are super gifts, as are the leather variety — all lined in thinsulate or wool, usually priced between $22 and $36, now on sale for $18.

The sweater department will provide many one-of-a-kind handknits from Uruguay, the Irish Avoca zip-up fisherman's knit made with boucle yarn, and a selection of hand-made sweaters from Nepal in wonderful colors at only $85, which Mrs. Olaz considers a "coup" because of the high cost of hand knits this year.

The more mature woman with a full figure will appreciate the fact that several fashion sweaters come in extra large. One black sweater is fully sequined diagonally across the front, while another has tiny jet beading on alluring ruffles at the shoulders.

The selection of hats at a la Mode is the best in town. Fedoras (some are even lined like the traditional men's hat) in several colors, including mauve, pink and raspberry, purple, grey and taupe, and many other styles, such as the veiled evening hat in black to wear at cocktails, will look fetching on your favorite woman. They are priced between $20 and $42.

A la Mode boasts unusual accessories, such as oversize metal belt buckles seen in all the fashion magazines, and designed to be worn with a wide soft belt, available in several colors. Challis shawls in prints and plaids, luxurious purple, teal blue and pink with brilliant colors, all silk hand painted squares, tatted lace collars and scarves, and oversized necklaces and glittery jewelry complete the fashion picture. Hand made designer earrings, priced between $7 and $60, are interesting combinations of oxidized titanium, silver and gold leaf. Acrylic ones in soft long mohair scarves in gold leaf are unique gifts.

It is going to be a "very beary merry Christmas" again this year at The Country Mouse, according to its owner Cynthia Bittinger, who advises those looking for a particularly special furry friend to hurry because there are shortages everywhere. The all-wool Chinese bears are still reasonably priced at $13, and sport bright red scarves, while the Vanderbear family still takes the prize for a "dressed-up" family. Bully Bear, Albert the Running Bear (who has a storybook to go along with him), the "Bearman of the Board," and Aloysius are accompanied this year by two large British Bears, Nanny and the Schoolmaster Theodore Bearington, a cozy fellow with a handknit stocking cap and cable sweater, is in scarce supply and Scarlett O'Beara has not arrived to join Rhett Butler as yet.

A "BEARY MERRY" CHRISTMAS will be had by all who visit The Country Mouse where the bears are once again on parade. In the shop where gifts and Christmas treasures for the whole family will be found, owner Cindy Bittinger and Lori Hill display two "visiting" bears from England.

Mrs. Bittinger enjoys her bears as much as her customers, who will find a trove of gifts in the bear motif, such as soaps, pins, books, ornaments, gift boxes, wrapping paper, cards, posters, calendars and a full selection of teddy bear clothes.

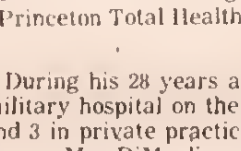
"This is a family store for all ages. There is nothing fresh or off-color to buy here," says Mrs. Bittinger, mother of three small children, who has everything from one of the best selections of Christmas cards in town, to Christmas cookie cutters in the shape of a full train, to adult desk toys which are big sellers this year, such as a mechanical money bank with King Kong climbing up a skyscraper to deposit a penny from his mouth.

Animals are clearly part of the Christmas scene at The Country Mouse, and a good assortment of Advent calendars can be found here. Small children enjoy rocking on the owner's own lamb while their parents enjoy choosing from the tasteful collection of barnyard primitives, the miniature mice which have traditionally been the shop's trademark, and figures, books and eveo bath foam for children from the Beatrix Potter stories. Bunnies with extra long red or green ears for the holidays will soon be unpacked.

The Country Mouse has selected wooden ornaments from all over the world this year, quality toys made in Germany such as the rubber Noah's Ark which teeters back and forth, and a number of musical toys for any age.

Desk toys include an amusing wind-up camel, a hopping rubber frog (perfect for the Christmas stocking), and a girl in a wind-up car who stops to take a photo.

Among the most collectible gifts in the tiny store are the host of Victorian carollers, hand-made and signed by a Pennsylvania artist. The limited series of standing figures, priced at $35 each, includes adults and children singing, a drummer boy and this year, Mrs. Cratchitt of "A Christmas Carol" — gifts which will be treasured always.



Since the birth of her son, Mrs. Bittinger has made an effort to find tiny treasures for little boys, but The Country Mouse is also a haven for young girls in town. Tiny bead necklaces, stickers galore, hand-painted wood pins, and stretchy bracelets appeal to young women. Older ones will appreciate primitive ceramic jewelry from Guatemala, the fresh-water pearls strung with semi-precious stones, and the laser-treated titanium pins and earrings.

Musical cards which play "Jingle Bells" are among the excellent selection found in the shop, including cards made by Caspari, Fraser, museum reproductions by Olsen, a religious and a literary series, recycled paper ones, traditional Victorian cards, and new contemporary cut-outs in bright colors.

An emphasis on child-like innocence is seen here and will be evident on December 15 when The Country Mouse will donate 10 percent of all sales to Save the Children, a fund-raiser for the starving children of Ethiopia. A flautist and a caroller will entertain shoppers on the Saturdays of December.

DANISH POT-POURRI

Contemporary Idiom. The catalogue that accompanies the current display of Danish contemporary art at the gallery at Squibb states that ... "Danish artists seldom have been trend setters in the history of the arts ..." noting that, instead, Denmark's artists have been strongly influenced by the art world as it is in New York.

As such, this collection is an artistic pot-pourri that employs a familiar vocabulary — one nation's version of the contemporary idiom. The work of Denmark's leading painters, the exhibition includes regional interpretations of neo-realism, minimal art, neo-expressionism, constructivism, a smattering of pop, and traditional still life, as well as some works that defy labeling but are described as being rooted in Danish culture.

Color is, perhaps, the single unifying characteristic. With few exceptions, intense paintings are marked by strong contrasts and untempered hue. Art historian Bente Scavenius notes in the introductory catalogue essay that "Danish artists are seldom well versed in the theoretical aspects of their craft." And, even though some of the included paintings, such as Frithioff Johansen's heroically scaled still life and the technically impressive photoreal watercolors by Hans Henrik Lerfeldt, are controlled and deftly rendered works, the collection is — indeed — more spontaneous than sophisticated and the viewer is most conscious of a tendency towards an expressive, occasionally painterly approach.

Dr. Scavenius points out that it is this spontaneous, expressive nature of the paintings that makes them essentially Danish: a style she characterizes as a combination of mystical and violent elements — mixed with the lyrical and the erotic.

At Full House, Sculptor William Baumol uses wood much in the manner that some painters employ their paint. In this collection of recent work his frequent use of curvilinear forms is almost calligraphic in effect. And the balances between structure and silhouette effectively combine with the intrinsic character of the various surfaces to form composed space planes and curves are translated into vehicles that manipulate light and shadow. In fact, the mellow, burnished tones of local woods, such as black walnut, oak and beech, become areas of "color" that are almost as visually significant as the organization of the space.

Mr. Baumol, who is also a painter, says "... There is no doubt that moving from two to three dimensions increases the fascination of the design problem, because it also increases the complexity inherent in the composition." He notes that this show, in which there are pieces that might be described as three-dimensional versions of collage, is an artistic milestone. He explains this as "... A recent switch in style ... I have broken loose from the inhibiting constraints of a single piece of wood and have begun to make compositions of different kinds and shapes using wood held together with dowels handmade pegs that constitute an integral part of the composition

It almost seeems as if there is a dialogue between the organic nature of the sculpture and the cool light and clear spaces that are an intrinsic part of Anne Packard's paintings The extensive collection of new works has preserved all the quality of the artist's earlier displays while adding new dimensions There are still evocative Cape Cod landscapes, tranquil ocean views, soft light and storm washed skies.

In addition, there are architectural landscapes; complex structural views that cover territory ranging from Mexico to Nova Scotia As such, Ms Packard continues to capture the local light This time there are sunny, intensely toned streetscapes south of the border and more restrained, cooler Northern views. In these we are more conscious of deliberate spatial constructions and, in some cases, the architectonic mode extends itself into the landscape painting as well

At McCarter Theatre, The 15th anaual PAA Juried Painting Exhibition is, perhaps, the best of its genre to date The collection is varied, almost uniformly tasteful, and contains a fair share of interesting and competent art, as well

Included works range from abstractions to extreme realism, weighted heavily on the latter end. What is most interesting, however, is that within the range of traditional and photo-real works there are several that are remarkably fine, that make the point that traditional is not necessarily the same as conventional and that there is still plenty of room in the artistic world for a first rate still life or landscape.

TRIP SET TO NEW YORK

To See van Gogh, The Princeton Art Association will sponsor a bus trip to New York on Monday, December 17, to see the exhibit, "van Gogh in Arles," at the Metropolitan Museum. The bus will also stop for two hours at the Museum of Modern Art.

The exhibition focuses on the work produced during the 15 months that van Gogh lived and painted in Arles. His subjects were the region's ripe wheat fields, blue skies, groves of twisted olive trees, sunflowers, and flowering orchards, as well as the people, streets, and countryside of Arles.

The 146 paintings, drawings and letters in the exhibit also touch on Gauguin's influence on van Gogh and the relationship between the two artists

The bus will leave the Acme side of the Princeton Shopping Center at 8:30 a.m. and depart from the Metropolitan at 4 p.m., to arrive in Princeton at 6 p.m. Cost to members of the PAA is $23; non-members' cost is $25. The Metropolitan is closed on Monday; only the van Gogh exhibit will be open to special tour groups.

For further information call the PAA at 921-9173.

Princeton Football Team Finally Wins a Close Contest, But the Season and Frank Navarro's Job Both Are Lost

It came too late to save the season, and too late to save Frank Navarro's job, but the Princeton football team finally won a close one last Saturday.

The Tigers struggled for four quarters against one of the poorest Dartmouth teams (2-7) in decades, finally nailing down a 21-17 triumph, their first over the Big Green since 1980.

Snapping a four-game losing streak, the victory saved another disappointing season from being labled something worse, but it could not reverse the overall downward trend of the last three years. 1984 goes into the record books as the third consecutive losing season.

SPORTS

The books will also show that after promsing starts these last three years, Princeton lost six of its last seven in '82, and four of its last five in '83 and '84.

The record against what are considered to be Princeton's biggest rivals both in league play and in efforts to recruit good football players, Harvard, Yale and Dartmouth, is even more appalling. In the last four years, Princeton is 0-9-1 against these opponents, with only Saturday's win, the miracle victory over Yale in '81 and a tie with Harvard that same season to show for its efforts.

This is why a very decent and hard working football coach like Navarro will be replaced. In talking to reporters after the game, Navarro pointed out that his team was just 86 seconds away from a winning season, referring to the loss to Yale the week before.

Perhaps, without realizing it, he put his finger on what has been the most frustrating aspect of these recent seasons. His teams did play competitive football, they came close to winning more often than not, but one close loss after another eventually becomes harder to swallow than a rout.

Back in the 70's when coach Bob Casicola was laboring with insufficient talent on hand, Princeton football was not competitive. At that time, a commitment was made by the University administration to support an upgrading of the program here. Navarro was brought in, football players got more considedration from the admissions office, and slowly things began to improve.

After a 2-5-2 season in Navarro's first year, the Tigers achieved three consecutive winning records, nothing spectacular to be sure (5-4, 6-4 and 5-4-1) but the first of their kind since 1970. But since then, these have been followed by three losing campaigns. Navarro's overall record here in seven seasons was a losing one, 29-35-3.

In league play, which is where it matters most, he was 23-23-3. Thus, blessed with better material, the level of Princeton football was raised to the .500 level.

The simple question that had to be answered was whether an attempt should be made to take another step forward, or be content with mediocrity. There has been one lone Big Three Championship in the last 18 years, and no Ivy championships since 1969. Every other team, except Columbia, has won or shared a league title since then.

Under Navarro, the Tigers still could not win a big game or enough games to put together a really fine record. Each season always had one or two losses that could never be adequately explained. Princeton was the only team to lose to Columbia in 1982, and the only team to lose to Yale last fall. This year, the defeat by a run-of-the-mill (4-5) Brown team when the Tigers were 2-0 halted a promising start.

Navarro's explanations for these losses to the press and in his column in The Tiger's Lair" a weekly publication mailed to contributors to Friends of Princeton Football, often cited "a lack of mental preparation" as the reason. It was like waving a red flag.

A key element was missing year after year, and as is the case in any sport, the onus fell squarely on the coach.

There has been finger-pointing in other directions as well; the administration has been blamed in one report. Some say football doesn't enjoy as much support on and off campus as it did 15 years ago. Certainly the attendance figures in Palmer Stadium would bear that out. Others point to a lack of leadership among the players themselves.

But to say that he doesn't deserve all the blame still didn't help Navarro's situation here. Rightly or wrongly in every sport, college or professional, the eventual result is the same: winning coaches are rehired, losing ones are fired.

Mediocrity is not something Princeton has settled for on the academic side of life here. Its faculty is top notch, its admission policy assures first-rate students. And regardless of the low-key Ivy attitude, there's no reason to accept it in football.

A NICE ENDING . . .

For a Change. As it usually does, the game was slipping away in the second half, and the loyal Princeton football fans, who had seen it many times before were shaking their heads.

Ahead by 14-3 at the half, the Tigers had allowed Dartmouth to wrestle the lead away, 17-14, with two long

Here's a surprising fact ... The ONLY team in the long history of the National Football League ever to go through an entire season unbeaten and untied — the 1972 Miami Dolphins — did it with a SECOND-STRING quarterback! The '72 Dolphins opened the season with first-string QB Bob Griese, but he broke his ankle in the 5th game of the season ... The Dolphins then turned to their second-stringer, 38-year-old Earl Morrall, who led them to 11 straight victories ... It's amazing that the only unbeaten-untied team in NFL history achieved that record with a second-string quarterback playing the majority of games.

Here's one of the most incredible records ever set in football ... On Sept. 27, 1953 Bert Rechichar of the Baltimore Colts tried a field goal for the first time in his life in the National Football League — and he kicked the longest field goal EVER made in the history of the NFL up to that time! ... It was a 56-yarder — and it set the all-time NFL record ... Nobody had ever kicked one that long before — and Rechichar did it on his very first try! ... To make the record even more unusual, Rechichar played in the NFL for eight years after that and never kicked one that long again!

third period drives. Early in the fourth they rallied to go up 21-17, but now with time running out and the Big Green was marching purposefully downfield for what might well be the winning touchdown.

Give a big chunk of credit to a 10-yard holding penalty that negated a Dartmouth first down on the 17 and made it first and 20 from the 27 instead, but praise is due this Princeton team for finally doing the job right late in the game. It hasn't happened since Bucknell.

On succeeding downs, Mark Petruzziello and Mark Berggren both sacked Dartmouth's quarterback Mike Caraviello, forcing a punt. And to prove it was no fluke, the defense did it again less than two minutes later.

A Chris Ratliff fumble on the Tigers' 30 gave the visitors another chance. Fullback Lorenzo Chambers blasted off tackle for seven yards to the 23 on first down, but three superb defensive plays, two by linebacker Todd Rentrew and one by defensive back Eric Robinson forced the Big Green to give up the ball on the 39. And this time the Tigers' offense did its part by holding on to the ball until the clock ran out.

Whether they won this game for themselves, Navarro, Bill Bowen and Bob Myslik or Ronald Reagan (there was no phone call from the White House to the Tigers' locker room after the game) doesn't matter. You would like to think the members of next year's team will remember how they did it when they begin play in September.

If things change around here, they might also learn how to put a team away much earlier when they have the chance. Ahead by 11 points early in the second period, the Orange and Black had an opportunity to put this contest out of reach. The defense was holding the Dartmouth attack in check, after allowing a first period field goal. But a series of fumbles, holding penalties and generally sloppy play kept the Tigers bogged down deep in their own territory.

They had proved earlier they could score against the Big Green. Ratliff, on his way to a third consecutive 100 plus yards day (157 in 28 carries) scored the first quarter touchdown from one yard out after lugging the ball for most of the 65-yard, 12-play drive.

Just a minute into the second period, Doug Butler and Derek Graham gave a final performance of their celebrated pass and run play. Graham caught the ball over the middle, cut to the left sideline and outraced two Dartmouth defenders to the end zone to complete a 56-yard touchdown. Graham caught four passes for 106 yards, the minimum number needed to break Kevin Guthrie's Ivy career record for receptions, 121 to 120.

The offense shut up shop at that point until the defense had allowed Dartmouth back in the ball game in the third period. Trailing 17-14 early in the fourth, the Tigers struck for their final touchdown. A pass to Graham and three fine runs by Ratliff brought the ball to the one, and Butler went over from there.

Watching Ratliff begins to stir memories of a decade ago when Walt Snickenberger bulled his way over opposing linemen. He'll be back next year, as will Butch Climmons, a solid fullback, plus Butler, who could return to the form he showed as a sophomore. But that's a story for another time, there's another matter to be resolved first.

—Jeb Stuart

TIGERS LOSE FIRST TWO

In Hockey. The new year began for the Princeton men's hockey team last Saturday and Sunday with an old problem: the competition hasn't gotten any easier.

The Tigers returned from their two-game road trip to upstate New York without a victory, losing to Cornell, 5-3, on Saturday, and Colgate, 3-0, the following afternoon.

The home season opens this Friday night in newly-renovated Baker Rink with a 7:30 contest against Dartmouth. Harvard will be the opponent the following evening, also beginning at 7:30. Get those tickets early; the new individual seats are all sold on a reserved basis.

The Orange and Black has a solid shot at gaining its first victory of the season at the Big Green's expense, but a victory over the Crimson will be much harder to achieve. In an ECAC pre-season poll, the Cantabs were the overwhelming choice to repeat as Ivy champions, with Cornell and Yale running a close race for second.

Harvard has all-Ivy goalie Grant Blair, behind the best defense in the league, and the second-best offense that should be strong despite losing top scorer and all-Ivy selection Dave Connors. Dartmouth has a new coach, Brian Mason, and not much else.

Another old problem, too many penalties (nine) hurt Princeton in the loss to Cornell. Three of the winners' five goals were tallied when the Tigers were a man down. The Big Red opened the scoring at 3:30 of the first period, and held that 1-0 lead until 13:01 of the second when Pat Brodeur scored a shorthanded goal, assisted by Cliff Abrecht.

The deadlock looked like it might last until the third period, but Cornell managed to score on a power play with just 13 seconds left in the second. They made good on another power play opportunity just 90 seconds into the third to make the score 3-1.

Brodeur's second goal narrowed the gap to 3-2, but the home team regained the lead at the 12:59 mark, with the Tigers shorthanded once again. Tim Oshier brought the Orange and Black to within one at 16:56, but less than a minute later, Cornell added its fifth of the game.

Sophomore Dave Shea was in the goal for the Tigers, and made 24 saves. Cornell's goalie had 23.

On Sunday, coach Jim Higgins went with another sophomore, Dave Marotta, in the nets, and he turned away 34 shots, but got no offensive support from his teammates. The Tigers also managed 34 shots, but none got past Colgate's Jeff Cope.

Princeton cut its penalty total to four, but still gave up a power play goal in the first period to the Raiders. The home team added a pair of insurance tallies in the final frame. Higgins is certain to have his players working on their own power play situations in practice this week. The Tigers had seven opportunities against Cornell and six against Colgate, and missed on every one.

TWO GAMES ON TAP

For Mike's Tavern. In second place in the Mercer County Women's Unlimited Soccer League, Mike's Tavern of Princeton will play two games this week.

Mike's will oppose league-leading and unbeaten (11-0) Joe's Mill Tavern on Sunday at noon and Princeton Nautilus Tuesday evening at 8:15. Both games will be played at Mercer County Park.

After an 8-1 loss to the Hibernians and a 5-0 shutout of Princeton Caterers, Mike's record is currently 8-4.

Following the loss to the third-place Hibernians, in which Beth Portale's goal was the only Mike's score, the Tavern bounced back against Caterers with three goals by Debbie Smyth and single tallies by Ella Banning and Kathy Kilpatrick.

With two-thirds of the season over, Mike's coach Bob Smyth commented on the outlook for his team for the rest of the season. "The last third of the season is going to be very competitive. All the teams have gotten better as the season has progressed and some will get even stronger.

"Of course we're going to be stronger, too, because Cindy Lombardo is nearly completely healed from her leg injury. Princeton's Beth Portale and Molly Melville are now with us as are Mercer County College's Diane Kelly (the nation's highest junior college scorer) and Patti Zollner."

PHS Field Hockey Team Wins State Group 3 Championship with 1-0 Victory over Demarest

TWO AGAINST ONE: Erika Gabrielsen, center, and another PHS player battle a white-shirted Demerest player tor the ball in Saturday's Group 3 state championship game in field hockey. Teammate Abby Tate (37) looks on. PHS went on to a 1-0 win to capture the state title for the second timne in 10 years. (W L. Bill Allen Jr photo)

"All the way to the top."

That is the way Princeton High coach Joyce Jones summed uo this most memorable of seasons, which she likened to a journey for the PHS field hockey team. When the last summit had been reached and conquered Saturday, a 1-0 victory over Demerest at Rutgers Athletic Center in Piscataway, the Little Tigers reigned supreme, they were the Group 3 State Champions.

As the final whistle sounded, joy and delirium swept over the PHS team. "It was a special feeling, you had to be there to appreciate it," said Jones. "What happened here today," she added, "is what can happen when a team believes in itself and pulls together."

The state title was Princeton's second in four trips to the final round. "No other school from Mercer County has ever won a state championship. We're the only one to have done that," said Jones. "The last team from this area to win a state championship was also Princeton High in 1975 – coached by Jones.)

The journey for this year's team began September 14 with a 2-0 victory over Lawrence, and culminated 23 games later with the victory over Demerest. Sophomore Eileen Causing's deflection of a shot from outside the circle in the first half was the only score of the game. PHS then relied on its heralded defense to blank Demerest — the Bergen County champions playing in their first state final — the rest of the way.

In six post-season tournament games, including a 2-0 victory over Camden Catholic, the southern New Jersey Group 3 champion earlier in the week, the Little Tigers did not allow a single goal.

The shutout Saturday was goalie Caylyn Tobin's 18th of the season, a school record.

For a majority of the senior-dominated PHS team, the journey to excellence actually began four years ago. This group, noted Jones, has won two sectional championships, winning the Group 2 title as sophomores and the Group 3 crown this year, two Colonial Valley Conference league crowns, and reached the finals of the Mercer County Tournament for the first time this season. Most of the players are also members of the school's lacrosse team that reached the state finals two years ago.

"It says a lot about the seniors and their accomplishments," said Jones on Monday. "We're having our goodbyes today and it is a challenge for me to let go. They are such an inspiring group of players.

"The friendships you form . . . it's part of coaching. Each one was unique as a player. That's what you miss more than anything else."

Those who played their last game for Princeton are co-captains Erika Gabrielsen and Cassie Vogt, Nadia Glucksberg, Michelle Cumberhatch, Sally Flynn, Sue Lofgren, Kim Perna, Abby Tate, Martha Waltman and Myla Causing.

Jones, who is taking two dozen top players from high schools in this area to compete in a round-robin tournament in California, reported Monday that she still hasn't had time to reflect on what has happened. "Maybe sometime this summer when I'm on the beach it will sink in," she smiled.

Causing's Fifth Goal. Causing's goal against Demerest, coming with eight minutes to play in the first half, was her fifth of the season. Glucksberg had blasted a corner shot toward the goal and Causing, thinking the ball was going to go out of bounds, put her stick down to keep it in and deflected it past Demerest goalie Trish Barber, who had posted 15 shutouts in Demerest's 18 wins this season.

Tobin and the PHS defense took it from there. Tobin, who will be back next year, made six saves in the second half and received, as usual, plenty of support from teammates Vogt, Glucksberg, Flynn, Lofgren, Tate and Waltman. "It's a great feeling winning it all," agreed Tobin.

Rough First Half. Against favored Camden Catholic earlier in the week, PHS had a rough first half as the southern champions continually pressed the attack. "We were ambushed in the defensive end; it was probably the most demanding 30 minute-game we had played this year," observed Jones.

"They were so fast off their cuts that we weren't ready for them," continued Jones. PHS kept Camden from scoring ("Caylyn let them know she was there," said Jones) with two standout saves by Vogt who made an excellent hand stop on a ball in the air and another by Waltman on a shot that would have been a goal if she had not been there, said Jones.

At halftime Jones laid it on the line. "I expressed my disappointment and anger at the offense for just watching it happen," recalled Jones. "I told them we wanted to go up to the other end and apply the same pressure, to turn it around. The defense was doing everything.

In championship games you win on defense but you've got to have some offense, too."

At the 10:20 mark in the second half, the PHS offense delivered — twice. Off a corner by Cumberbatch, Lofgren rifled a shot that was "signed, sealed and delivered to the cage," said Jones. "It was textbook perfect." The goal was Lofgren's fourth of the year.

One minute later, Gabrielsen scored on a ball that the Camden goalie failed to clear, pushing it past her for her 12th of the season — tops among all PHS scorers.

All three losses suffered by PHS this season came at the hands of rival Hopewell Valley, which scored five of the six goals allowed by Tobin all season. PHS did not have to contend with the Bulldogs in the state tournament, however, because PHS moved up to Group 3 this year while HV stayed in the Group 2 division division.

As evidence of the close knit fraternity in field hockey, three members of the Hopewell team (upset in the state tournament by Delaware Valley for its only loss of the season) – Sara Clark, Jamie Tome and Joan Jasieo were among the spectators cheering the Little Tigers on.

Cirullo and Little Tigers End Season on Winning Note, Beating Nottingham, 34-20; Young Gains over 200 Yards

One got the impression that Princeton High football coach Bill Cirullo did not want the season to end

No wonder. The Little Tigers ended their season Saturday with an impressive, come-from-behind, 34-20 victory over Nottingham. They looked solid in all phases of the game.

"We looked damned good," said Cirullo. "We were explosive, 27 points in the second half indicates that I'm very proud of what we've accomplished in the last six games. We can play with anybody." PHS won four of its last six to finish with a 4-5 record. After four years at the helm, Cirullo is dead even with 18 wins, 18 losses.

The key to Princeton's winning four of its last six, reported Cirullo, has been the line play. "In the last six games our line has started to play — both offensively and defensively. We have some darn good talent."

No one better illustrated Cirullo's observation than tackle Dominic Tracey. Time and again the six-foot, 177-pound senior jumped to his feet and punched the air with his fist after bringing down a North Star runner, often for a loss.

SUPER FREDDIE: You don't run up nearly 300 yards in offense (201 on the ground, 97 passing) without a super effort. Here Princeton High quarterback Freddie Young flies through the air (like a speeding bullet?) as he gains yardage near the goal in Saturday's 34-20 victory over Nottingham.

"Tracey played an excellent game," Cirullo agreed. "Especially early on he was all over that field. He played a very inspired game."

The biggest talent on the field this last game was PHS quarterback Freddie Young. He was the offense. Young rushed for 201 yards in 17 carries, scored three touchdowns on runs of 11, 1 and 32 yards, and added 97 more yards in offense by completing nine of 13 passes. Six went to his favorite target, end Gavin Hulsman, for 95 yards.

The combination of Young-to-Hulsman developed into one of, if not the most potent combinations in the CVC league. Both served as co-captains of the PHS squad this fall.

"Freddie had everything going well, especially the option keeper," observed Cirullo. "We were an option team this year. We used a blocking scheme against Lawrence very effectively and we thought we could come back again with it and be just as effective. We'll go to the well until somebody stops us.

"When Freddie drops back, he always has the option to run. Once you get Freddie in the open field you can't find many — if anybody — better in the county."

Sluggish Start. As Cirullo noted later, this was Princeton's ninth and final game. "Everything had been delivered. All the teaching had been finished." Now it was up to the team to put home team Nottingham away and go out a winner. But on this clear, cold morning, the Little Tigers were sluggish and the North Stars took advantage, jumping off to a 14-0 lead. "We lacked intensity in the first half," admitted Cirullo later.

The Little Tigers awoke with 3:40 left in the half, after the home team had scored its second TD. Starting on the PHS 42, Young on an eight-play drive, connected three times to Hulsman, the last for 13 yards to the North Star 11. Young then went over from the 11 for his first TD with 1:06 left in the half.

PHS was knocking again in the final minute. It tried an onside kick, which was covered by Mike Riddick at midfield. Young then broke through on one of his patented open-field runs and reached the Nottingham 10. With 13 seconds left he passed to Hulsman who was pushed out on the four and on the final play of the half, Young was stopped just inches short of the goal.

Best Play of Season. PHS tied the score with 5:02 left in the third period with what Cirullo later described as "our best play of the season." It had Young running an option to his left with Hulsman on a takeoff pattern down the sideline. It fooled Nottingham completely. Hulsman, all alone when he caught the ball, trotted in the final 20 yards. The play covered 44 yards.

There was more. After Tracey recovered a Nottingham fumble on the North Star 12, Riddick appeared to be stopped but fought his way to the one from where Young bucked over on the next play for the go ahead TD. Hulsman's PAT made it 21-14.

An interception by Derrick Martin set up Princeton's fourth score. On the second play of the final period, Young, starting from the 32, broke off tackle into the clear. Ten yards from the goal line he held the ball high over his head as he rambled into the end zone.

That this was going to be Princeton's day was evident on its next score. Freshman tackle Alex Murgo ("What a career he has ahead of him!") intercepted a short Turner pass over the middle on the Nottingham 20. But a series of penalties including a clip and unsportsmanlike conduct (PHS had 145 yards in penalties whistled against it and Cirullo was engaged in a running battle with the refs throughout the game, leading one onlooker to comment, "We're fighting two games: Nottingham and the refs") left PHS needing 45 yards on third down.

Not to worry. Young took care of that with another example of broken field running. He slipped off tacklers, jumped over another, and was finally hauled down on the 12 after a 48-yard gain. Two plays later he pitched to Scot Fisher for the score. PHS had reeled off 34 unanswered points for its most sustained offensive performance of the season.

"I'm very proud of the way we played our last six games," assessed Cirullo. "We played very well against Notre Dame. I felt we could be a 5-4 team and, working hard, maybe finish 6-3."

And so the Freddie Young era comes to an end. At no time in its previous eight games did PHS have a comfortable lead and so Young's backup, sophomore Paul Fisher got very little playing time. Young did it all.

Before the start of the season, Cirullo had commented on Young. "He's shown himself to be a very positive influence on our team. He's got to continue to be as quarterback and captain. He's got to stabilize that backfield.

"He's pretty cool. He thinks he's the ice man. I hope he stays that way, certainly he'll be tested."

Freddie met the test. Thanks, Mr. Excitement, for two memorable and exciting years.

Can Pete Carril Continue the Magic and Lead Tiger Basketball Team to Another Ivy Title?

When the Princeton basketball season begins against Franklin and Marshall at 7:30 this Monday in Jadwin Gym, the foremost question on everybody's mind will be: can Pete Carril do it again?

The little magician in the rumpled clothes produced another Ivy title out of thin air last year, despite the loss of three of his top five players from the previous team. All-Ivy Player of the Year Craig Robinson, plus Rich Simkus and Gordon Enderle had all departed, but Carril pulled another squad out of his hat that got the job done.

———

The Tigers won the title the last weekend of the season, as first Harvard and then Cornell fell by the wayside. In NCAA play, they defeated the University of San Diego, and then gave Jerry Tarkanian's Nevada-Las Vegas team a good battle, before bowing, 65-56.

Pete Carril
Magician in a Rumpled Suit

This winter Carril will be missing two more stellar performers, Billy Ryan and Kevin "Moon" Mullin. A four-year veteran, Ryan ranks as one of the top playmakers Princeton has ever produced. The school's career assist leader, he possessed an almost uncanny knack for finding the open man.

Mullin, a reserve player as a junior, jumped into the limelight in his final year to become the team's leading scorer and rebounder, averaging 17 points and nearly six caroms a game. Both players were first team all-Ivy selections.

Who's Back. Carril has two solid starters returning, plus several other players who are competing for the three other spots. One of the biggest reasons for the team's success last year was the emergence of unheralded Howard Levy as a player, who could be counted upon.

After two unimpressive seasons as a reserve center, Levy surprised nearly everyone with his scoring, and particularly his accuracy. He averaged 11.2 points and his field goal percentage of .651 shattered the previous record. Levy and Jeff Pagano have been named co-captains of this year's squad.

Now a junior, John Smyth will have to regain the scoring touch he had as a freshman, if the Orange and Black is to bid for its third consecutive league crown. His shots from the outside missed more often than not last winter, and his percentage from the floor fell to .432. He'll start at one of the guard positions.

Sophomore Joe Scott seems to have the inside track for the other. He saw plenty of playing time in '83-84 as the top reserve guard, scoring eight points on four different occasions. One of the three seniors on this year's team, Isaac Carter, has never quite made the grade as a regular starter, but he has had many solid performances in clutch situations for the Tigers. Sophomore Ted Gobilot, who got some game experience late in the season, gives Carril depth at the position.

Carril is expected to chose his two starting forwards from a trio of sophomores. Aaron Belz started in several games a year ago before missing almost all the rest because of stress fractures in both feet. In his nine games, Belz showed good outside shooting ability, averaging almost five points.

At 6'6 Alan Williams will be expected to give Levy help off the boards, and he can also hit the outside jumper. Jay Bubinak saw reserve duty in 17 games last winter, and turned in some solid efforts for Carril. Belz and Williams are the projected starters at the moment.

The most impressive of the freshmen recruits is John Thompson, III, son of the Georgetown University head coach. He averaged more than 20 points per game at Gonzaga High School in Washington, D.C. Brent Miley, is one of three freshmen on the roster from Colorado, and Carril thinks he may be "a sleeper." Dave Orlandini has shown the most promise of the incoming freshmen backcourt players.

If you like to watch the Tigers at Jadwin, better plan not to miss many games, a lean home schedule features only nine contests here. After Monday's game, they will play here only once before league play begins in the middle of January. NYU will come here on Wednesday, Dec. 12.

Bach Festival

sists of four cantatas from the 1723 period. One has hints of the great choruses in D major using trumpets and tympani, which are so characteristic, Mr. Scheide says, of the Magnificat, the Christmas Oratorio and the B Minor Mass. It shows, too, how Bach re-used some of the material in the cantatas in other works or in later cantatas.

Joint Effort. The Festival also marks the second time that Westminster Choir College and Princeton University have cooperated on a musical venture. The first was last spring, with the performance by the Princeton University Orchestra under Michael Pratt with the Westminster Choir of the Beethoven Ninth Symphony.

Here, too, Mr. Scheide was pivotal, for he has served 20 years on the board of the Choir College, including a stint as chairman, and he has also been chairman of the Advisory Council for the Princeton University Music Department. For the past 16 years the Choir College has held a festival devoted to the works of one particular composer roughly every other year.

Choir College President Ray Robinson says that ever since he took office in 1969 he has sought opportunities to "build bridges" between two institutions that are just a few blocks from one another. He too was aware that, "if you are talking about a Bach Festival in Princeton, you have to talk to Bill Scheide."

A planning committee of University and Choir College representatives have been working on the Bach birthday celebration for nearly two years. Dr. Robinson promises that it will be "a musical experience of the highest quality."

Mr. Scheide describes the cantatas to be performed as "absolutely first rate pieces." He seems pleased by the Festival, for he knows that not only the public but also too many musicians are unaware of the expressive range of the cantatas. Today's conventions are such, he says, that instrumentalists don't like to accompany a singer, preferring a solo performance.

Returning to the Shakespeare-without-theater analogy, he says that is like monologists hogging the stage. When that happens, says Mr. Scheide, "Bach suffers, and so does all musical life."

The November 30 concert will begin at 8:30 as the first major event in refurbished Robinson Hall of Alexander Hall. Series tickets are available at $15, $20, and $30. Single tickets are $5, $7, and $10 ($3 for students). For further information call 452-5707.
